Waveland man injured in truck-train collision

William Bryant, 46, of Waveland was injured Tuesday morning when a train collided with his truck on Ansley Road.

Bryant said he heard the whistle but when he looked up it was too late, according to Hancock County Deputy Dennis Tartavouille.

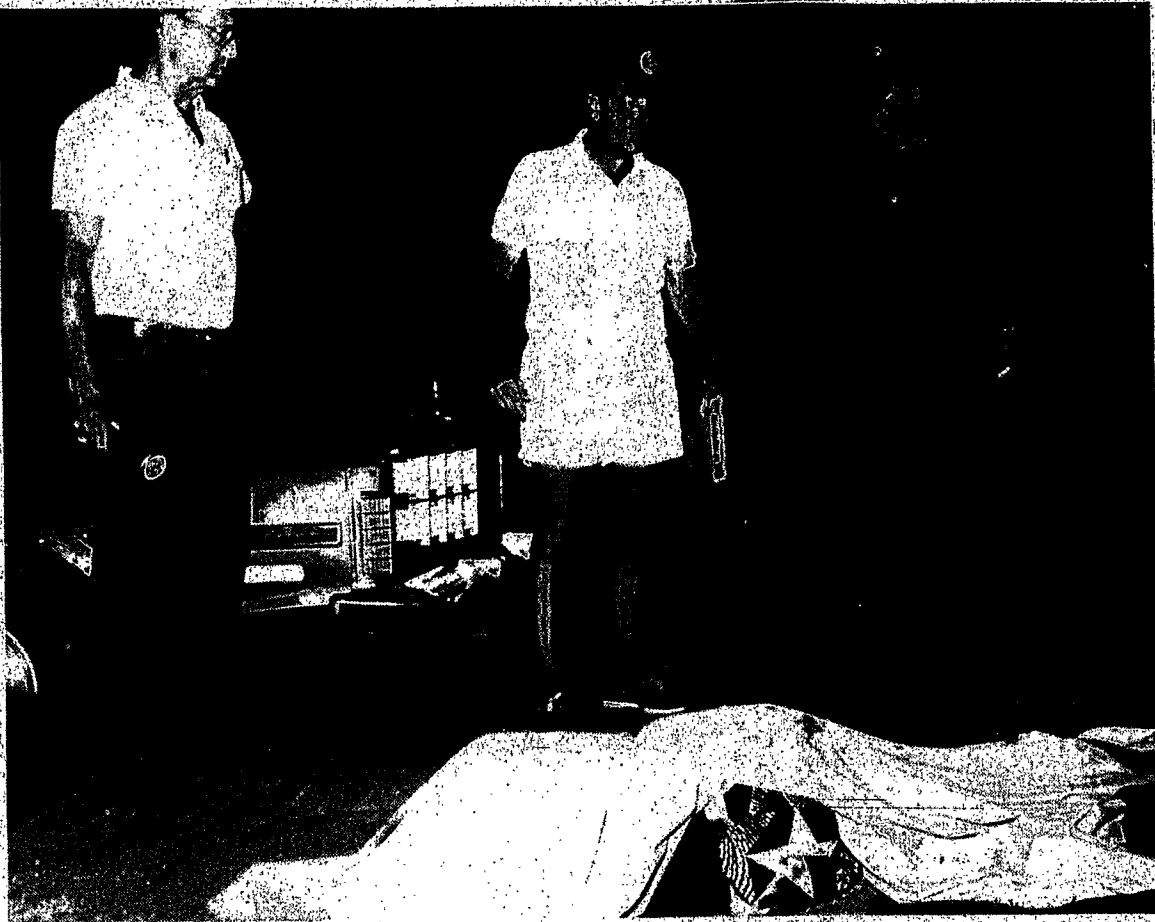

Tartavouille said the rainy weather was also a factor in the accident because when Bryant applied the brakes the truck slid.

Bryant was transported by private vehicle to Hancock Medical Center where he was treated and released.

News Brief

LA LECHE LEAGUE

Mothers interested in information about breastfeeding are welcome at meetings of Bay St. Louis La Leche League Friday, July 24, 9:30 a.m., 121 Carroll Avenue. Babies also are welcome. For further information call 467-7631.

Pine Shadows Apartments, was killed. Terry Coleman of Gulfport was arrested and charged with murder in connection with the death, Dorn stated. (Photo by John Wilkerson)

Gulfport man arrested in Waveland shooting

BY DENA BISNETTE

A Gulfport man has been charged with murder in connection with a Tuesday night shooting incident at Pine Shadows Apartments off US-90 in Waveland.

Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn said Terry Coleman of Gulfport was in the Hancock County Jail Wednesday morning. Bond has been set at $100,000.

Dorn said the fatality in the case was Pine Shadows resident Louise Lewis, 23, who was killed with a handgun. An autopsy had been scheduled for Wednesday morning, he added.

Dorn said Coleman was apparently an ex-boyfriend of Lewis and that the shooting allegedly occurred during an argument about 100 feet in front of Lewis' apartment.

Coleman was arrested by Officer Michael Prendergast about four minutes after the Waveland Police Department received a call regarding the shooting at 9:28 p.m.

The suspect's vehicle was stopped at US-90 and Waveland Avenue, police said.

Dorn said almost all of his police officers were at or near the scene of the shooting Tuesday night and at the investigation is continuing with Robert Tartavouille, Sandra Henley and John Wilkerson in charge.

Pass man charged with phone obscenity

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department has arrested a Route 3, Pass Christian man on obscene telephone call charges.

According to Investigator Glen

Strong, Edward James Sullivan, 33, was arrested Tuesday. Bond was set at $1,000.

Strong stated that bond is charged with using obscene language on the telephone.

Formal opening of Mental Health Clinic set

The formal opening of the Hancock County Satellite Office of the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 5.

The new office, located at 311 Shieldsboro Square, has been remodeled and includes a reception area, three therapy rooms, including one special therapy room for children, and a large group therapy/meeting room.

Ribbon cutting ceremony is scheduled for 1 p.m. and a general open house is planned from noon until 2 p.m. The public is invited.

Ben Bennett, director of the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center, pointed out that the seven clinicians who work in the new office one or more days per week represent several disciplines.

Except for direct medical contacts, all services which are available at the main center in Gulfport are now also available at the Bay St. Louis office.

The center treats children, adolescents and adults. Marital counseling, family counseling, substance abuse programs, help for a wide variety of emotional problems, as well as programs for persons with serious mental disorders are available.

Information concerning these programs is available by calling 467-0183.

Medical-office zoning for Drinkwater fails

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

In spite of a 3-2 vote by the Bay St. Louis City Council in favor of rezoning property fronting on Drinkwater Road to Medical-Office District, the issue failed.

A petition presented in opposition to the zoning change made a 4-1 vote mandatory for the motion to pass.

Councilmen James Thriffley, Charles Johnson and Wilmer E. Seymour were in favor of the zoning change. Councilmen John Wilkerson and Lisa Coward voted nay.

The council also discussed the testing of the city's water supply.

The Bay St. Louis water system has passed all of 216 tests performed since July 1965 without one failure, according to a report by Norbert M. Redmond, director of the city's Public Works Department.

"To insure quality of water the city monitors the system on a daily basis and the state, on a 30-day basis inspects nine samples from different areas of the city," Redmond said.

The system has experienced no problem in meeting nationally established limits, he added.

Also at the meeting bids for installation of a new customer service collection line on Carroll Avenue were discussed.

Magnolia Construction, Inc. of Baton Rouge, La., with a low bid of $19,934 was awarded the project.

Southland Enterprises of Gulfport bid was in excess of $21,000.

The council also continued a discussion tabled at a recent meeting on mandatory hookups to the water system.

Some annexed area residents who have private wells had protested an ordinance requiring mandatory hookup.

Wilkerson reported the council was currently getting an ordinance drawn up to require all existing wells to be registered with the city before any further decisions are made.

In other business the council voted in favor of moving up a deadline for fences to be installed around swimming pools in the city.

A recently passed ordinance had given residents until the end of the year to have the fences installed but the new deadline is Sept. 30.

Councilman Coward requested the new deadline after discussing recent deaths in swimming pools in the area.

"There are abandoned swimming pools with weeds growing all around them which children could fall into by accident," she said.

Low census cited as hospital staff reduction cause

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A staff reduction of 10 personnel in administrative and support departments was effected Tuesday at Hancock Medical Center due to a drop in the hospital census.

Phil Wolfe, HMC administrator, said, "This reduction was necessary due to the hospital's census being lower than anticipated."

"The staff reductions were made in administrative and support departments as we tried to keep direct patient care departments intact," Wolfe added.

The administrator stated during the month of May, the local hospital's census was higher than ever before.

"Hospital staffs can usually fluctuate through attrition to meet the utilization needs, however, since the census in June and July were so much lower than May, HMC had to make the staff reductions," Wolfe allowed.

BEACH REPAIRS—Southland Enterprises equipment operator John Cole digs a trench along the edge of Beach Boulevard near Farrar Street in Waveland. The work is part of a $249,280 contract recently approved by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors as a method of repairing the beach and protecting the road while awaiting the results of a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Shore Protection Study. VFW to host POW-MIA Day

BY DENA BISNETTE

Theodore S. Price Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3253 and its auxiliary will host a Missing in Action-Prisoners of War awareness program at 2 p.m. Saturday at the post home, 434 Third St., Bay St. Louis.

Guest speaker for the event will be Mississippi Supreme Court Justice J. Ruble Griffin.

The event is being conducted in conjunction with National POW-MIA Week, July 19-28, 1987, according to Auxiliary President and POW-MIA Day Co-chairperson Lucille Boudreaux.

"There are 2,421 Americans still unaccounted for in Southeast Asia."

The public should be aware of this and not write them off as lost causes," Boudreaux said.

"All veterans' organizations must fight through proper channels to see that these Americans have been released, accounting for the missing and the repatriation of the remains of those who died serving our nation."

In addition to veterans' organizations, POW-MIA location efforts are carried out through the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, established in the 1960s on an informal basis and eventually chartered in May 1970.

In recognition of the event, the VFW post is asking that all citizens who fly the American flag to tie a yellow ribbon around the flagpole as a gesture of support for continuing MIA-POW-related efforts.

Saturday has been proclaimed POW-MIA Day by Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr.

Marriage Encounter weekend set

A Marriage Encounter weekend has been set for Friday, Aug. 14 to Sunday, Aug. 16 at the Ramada Inn, I-10 and Gause Blvd., Slidell, La., according to Jerry and Libby Fabre, coordinators of the Gulf-Lake Marriage Encounter.

The weekend will be sponsored by the Gulf-Lake Marriage Encounter Community, comprising St. Tammany and Tangipahoa parishes in Louisiana and the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

The weekend will begin at 8 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 14 and conclude Sunday evening, Aug. 16.

The weekend is a positive, simple and personal experience between husband and wife that revitalizes a marriage by helping couples to see what their marriages could and should be, according to the Fabres.

Couples interested in finding out more about the Marriage Encounter weekend may contact any of the following couples for information and pre-registration: John and Rita Dahn (467-5906); Dan and Pam Griffin (462-2092); Joe and Debbie Nastasi (896-1952) or David and Dorea Arguelles (432-1338).

Marriage Encounter weekends are sponsored several times each year by the Gulf-Lake Community of the World Wide Marriage Encounter, a non-profit organization.

"Tales from the Shadows" begins on PRM

"Tales from the Shadows," based on classic stories from literature dealing with the dark places in human life and thought, will air on Public Radio in Mississippi PRM for 13 weeks, beginning at 6:30 p.m., Sunday, July 26.

The 30-minute programs are radio adaptations by Erik Bauersfeld of some highly literary horror stories.

The first two programs of the series, airing on July 26 and August 2, are devoted to Nikolai Gogol's "The Diary of a Madman."

Other writers whose works were adapted for this radio drama series include Franz Kafka, Ambrose Bierce, Edgar Allan Poe and Fyodor Dostoyevsky.

PRM, a division of Mississippi ETV, can be tuned at FM frequency 90.3 Biloxi.

VFW sponsoring POW-MIA awareness program

Theodore S. Price Post and Auxiliary No. 3253 Veterans of Foreign Wars are sponsoring a POW-MIA Awareness Program on Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Post Home, 343 Third Street corner of Washington, Bay St. Louis.

An invitation is extended to all veteran organizations, local dignitaries, civic organizations and the public.

"Our priority is to draw the attention of the community, state and the U.S. government that there are still veterans missing in Southeast Asia and we are working toward their freedom," according to Earl Salaun Jr., post commander.

"This is a special invitation to all the POW's in our community to attend and be recognized. Food and drink will be served. Hope you will come and make this a momentous occasion, he added.

Investment firm to open in Bay

Craig Foster of the financial services firm Edward D. Jones & Co. is finalizing plans to open an office in Bay St. Louis.

Over the next few months Foster will begin introducing himself to the business people and residents of the area.

"We're very excited to extend our services to this area," said John Bachmann, managing partner of the firm.

"All our registered representatives have built their businesses with a genuine concern for their clients' welfare, and Craig will be able to continue this tradition by providing one-on-one service to the people of Hancock County and by offering only high-quality, conservative investments."

Foster said, "I'm eager to become acquainted with all the people of Hancock County. I'm looking forward to settling down here and am planning to be an active member of the community."

Edward D. Jones & Co. was founded in 1871. Today, its home office is located in Maryland Heights, Mo., just outside St. Louis.

With more than 1,100 branch offices in small communities and metropolitan areas in 36 states, Edward D. Jones & Co. has become the largest financial services firm in the nation in terms of retail offices.

Pleasure boat operators licensing needed now

The number of boat fatalities in recent years may want to make the powers to be look at some types of controls on boating operations.

First off should be a requirement for pleasure boat operators to have a license.

A license could be obtained only after passing a very hard test on boat operating skills and knowledge.

A license is necessary to operate an automobile, the legal speed is 65 m.p.h. on Interstate Highways, nowadays it is not unusual for boats to travel at 70-90 m.p.h.

A fisherman reported he was passed in the Jordan River recently by a boat operator in a 16 ft. hull with a 200 h.p. motor.

Licenses were required for the operation of autos and trucks long before they could even reach speeds of 60 m.p.h.

The amount of traffic on our waterways is increasing every year, as well as motor sizes, so the time may be now to think about boat operators licenses.

It is wondered if it is just us who feel this way, we would like your comments.

SEEKING SHADE—A record number of boys and girls participated in the Fourth Annual Gulf Coast Sportsman Club's Annual Kids Fishing Rodeo last Saturday. It was a pleasure just to see the expression on the faces of the many youngsters as they waited for the final results of the rodeo. Another suspense was whether their name would be selected to receive one of the valuable prizes, many of which were donated to the organization by local merchants. The kids fishing rodeos are also an event in which parents can do something with their children. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

Jackson—While statewide races get the most attention, some believe the real action of this political season is out in the trenches—in the 125 legislative districts where battles are being waged for seats in the next Legislature.

Some 49 members of the next Legislature—31 in the House and 18 in the Senate—have already been assured of election because they are unopposed.

Reports coming back from the legislative campaign wars indicate that while House Speaker Buddie Newman is stepping down, his long powerful Old Guard leadership is still a symbolic issue in a number of races.

Candidates in several parts of the state running against incumbents who were Newman loyalists, or who voted against the House rules changes stripping Newman of some of his power are talking about ending the "buddy system," or breaking up "the Old Guard" in the Legislature.

Also coming in for some political flak is BIPEC, the Jackson-based Business and Industry Political Education Committee. BIPEC, which has 1,400 business associations and companies as members, is the biggest political action group concentrating on legislative races.

Eight House members reportedly were put on a short "hit list" as prime targets of BIPEC either because they opposed tort reform or were very active in the House rules changes.

Business and industry groups generally opposed the rules reform because they weakened their influence over the powerful Rules, Ways and Means, and Appropriations Committees.

BIPEC has endorsed candidates in a total of 58 House races and 16 Senate races. In a number of other races, while BIPEC as an organization made no endorsement, its member associations are financially supporting candidates at the local level.

Rep. John Reeves of Jackson, one of those on the BIPEC "hit list," has charged that BIPEC tried to get opposition for him by offering one prospect $10,000 in campaign support and an apartment if he would move into Reeves' South Jackson district and run against him.

He contends "they got no takers because they knew they couldn't beat me." Reeves is unopposed.

Richard Lankford, executive director of BIPEC, denies the organization made such an offer. He admits, however, that a suggestion along that line was made at one BIPEC meeting.

Vicksburg Sen. Ken Harper, who unseated powerful Sen. Ellis Bodron in a major upset four years ago, this time drew two last-minute opponents, one in the Democratic primary and the other a Republican.

Both, he claims, were taking orders from BIPEC.

Lankford says BIPEC has not endorsed either of Harper's foes, but he confirmed that some of his member organizations have. As a result of the fiasco, however, two business leaders in Vicksburg who were members of the BIPEC board, have resigned.

In House District 65 North Jackson, incumbent Jack Wertz who was elected as a Democrat four years ago and then became a Republican in mid-term, is under attack from both Republican and Democratic opponents for supporting a constitutional convention.

Ken Stribling, a young researcher, who is a foe of Wertz in the BOP primary, is charging that Wertz "sold out to Buddie Newman." His literature says, "It's time to say goodbye to the Old Guard."

Two Democrats in the same district, Liz Austin and George Luter, are using a similar theme, tying the incumbent to Newman.

Alan Callicott, a 23-year-old business graduate of Mississippi State University from Senatobia, is taking on Rep. Charlie Williams, the 12 year veteran from Senatobia who has been perhaps Newman's closest lieutenant in recent years.

Callicott says he raises the name of the controversial speaker only with those "who bring up the speaker's name and ask if Charlie Williams was close to him."

But Callicott says "we are so far north of the Capitol that most people think Buddie Newman is the name of some auto parts dealer down in Col-dwater."

Meanwhile, Williams is gathering more PAC contributions from business lobby groups than perhaps any legislative candidate in the state.

Rep. Mary Ann Stevens of West, one of Newman's loyalists, is also being attacked for her close connection with the speaker and the House Old Guard.

Her lone Democratic foe, Murray Cain, a Durant radio man, has been charging that Stevens "has been voting for what Buddie Newman told her to vote for, and not the best interests of this district."

Even over in several Senate races, the term "buddy system" is being invoked as a legislative disease which aspirants are seeking to cure.

That is particularly so in Senate District 8 in Northeast Mississippi where Pat Hill of Houlika and Danny K. Thomas of Houston are hot on the trail of Sen. Jack Gordon of Okolona.

Both Mrs. Hill and Thomas are charging that Gordon, one of Lt. Gov. Brad Dye's closest lieutenants, is more protective of the "buddy system" than his constituency.

Gubernatorial candidates back giving people vote on constitutional convention

Seven candidates for governor say they support giving the people a right to vote in 1988 on calling a convention to write a new state constitution, according to a survey conducted by Common Cause/Mississippi.

Supporting the constitutional convention are Maurice Dantin, Gilbert Fountain, Ray Mabius, Ed Pittman, Jack Reed, Mike P. Sturdivant, and H. R. Toney. Douglas H. Lemon said he "cannot answer (the question) without opportunity to discuss."

Two other candidates, William L. Waller and John Arthur Eaves, did not respond to the questionnaire, which Common Cause mailed to all gubernatorial and legislative candidates in mid-June.

Paul M. Neville, president of the citizens' lobbying organization, said the seven commitments to support a referendum on this issue reflect an accurate reading of the will of the people. Despite broad public support and backing by Gov. Bill Allain earlier this year, a bill to put a convention referendum on the ballot failed in a House committee, after winning easily in the Senate.

Asked their position on making the county unit system mandatory, Fountain, Mabius, Pittman and Reed said they would support the proposal. Reed added that "Central purchasing and maintenance (should be) required." Dantin and Sturdivant would prefer to let voters in each county decide, while Lemon opposes a mandatory system but favors a referendum by county. Toney indicated outright opposition.

All seven candidates went on record in favor of legislation to strengthen Mississippi's open meetings law by allowing recovery of attorneys' fees by citizens successful in enforcing the law. Common Cause explained that traditionally enforcement of open meetings laws has depended on individuals bringing lawsuits against politicians holding secret meetings. At present those individuals must bear the expense of the lawsuits—a provision that has a chilling effect on enforcement of the law.

Noting that the state constitution now limits the governor to two terms, Common Cause asked the candidates whether they would support a constitutional revision limiting the lieutenant governor to two terms also. In support of that idea were Fountain, Lemon, Mabius, Pittman, Reed and Toney. Dantin took no position on the issue, while Sturdivant replied, "Address in new constitution."

Six of the candidates pledged to support a constitutional revision that would let the Legislature consider an omnibus appropriations bill: Dantin, Fountain, Lemon, Mabius, Pittman, Reed, and Sturdivant. Toney opposes the idea.

Common Cause pointed out that under present law, appropriations bills must be considered separately. As a result more than 275 bills are handled and passed one by one—a practice that prevents setting priorities and keeps legislators from basing financial decisions on an overall perspective, Neville explained.

The survey of legislative candidates is being compiled and will be released next week, Neville said. Candidates for the House and Senate were asked the same five questions and one additional question dealing with the rules of each legislative chamber. About half of the legislative candidates have already responded, he added.

Common Cause, a nonpartisan citizens' lobbying organization, does not support or oppose candidates. The group surveyed the candidates in order to inform the public about their positions on issues of openness and government accountability.

Supercomputer to improve state's research abilities

Mississippi received a very important gift last week from a former Mississippian. Standard Oil Production Company President William Johnson, who grew up in Jackson but now lives in Houston, Texas, presented the University of Mississippi with a supercomputer valued originally at $20 million. The supercomputer will be used to establish a state computing facility that will greatly enhance Mississippi's research and development capabilities. The researchers will see improvements because the supercomputer is one of the fastest in the world, capable of 800 million floating point operations per second—about 100-200 times faster than conventional computers.

This particular computer, according to Johnson, was used by Standard Oil in developing the Prudhoe Bay oil field in Alaska.

The supercomputer will give Mississippi a competitive edge in attracting public and private university and college researchers through a greatly expanded research capabilities to technology-oriented businesses.

The contribution by Standard Oil Company indicated a renewed interest in Mississippi from our investment in the past four years in the research and development and technology through projects like the Technology Transfer Center, National Space Technology Laboratories and Institute for Technology Development.

In every case, including the supercomputer acquisition, the Legislature was supportive in studying the proposals and in providing necessary funding for the projects. In the case of the supercomputer, the Legislature appropriated $2.5 million to the Central Data Processing Authority for installation, operation and maintenance of the supercomputer.

This gift from Standard Oil is another step toward the future for our state.

A squirrel has no color vision, it sees only in black and white.

Some big baseball action is on tap in Bay St. Louis Friday through Tuesday at Tiger Stadium's baseball field.

The Babe Ruth 16-18 year-old State Tournament is being hosted by the Bay St. Louis team.

The Bay St. Louis team is managed by Ronnie Artigues and coached by Fred Weems.

The Bay St. Louis team is playing great baseball and have a 35-10 record for the season.

They have faced very strong competition and have done a lot of out-of-state traveling in order to play competitive teams.

The Bay St. Louis group have been playing as a team for many years and have captured the 13, 15, and 16-year-old state championships along the way.

The eight team double elimination play begins at 5 p.m. on Friday.

Teams in the tourney are Bay St. Louis, McComb, Corinth, Morton, Biloxi, Gulfport, Helena and Yazoo City.

A schedule of play is published on the front page of the sports section in this issue of the Echo.

We hope sports fans will be out cheering our Bay St. Louis team to victory.

Saturday at 2 p.m. the Theodore S. Price Post and Auxiliary No. 3253 Veterans of Foreign Wars will sponsor a POW-MIA Awareness Program.

We hear and read very little news nowadays about our military men who are Missing In Action.

Families of many of the POW's-MIA's have formed a National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia with a sole purpose of seeking the release of all prisoners and accounting for those Americans missing.

It must be a nightmare for families not knowing the truth about their loved ones, whether they are dead or alive.

The local VFW invites members of all veterans, civic organizations and the public for the special ceremonies Saturday.

The VFW Post is located at 343 Third St., Bay St. Louis.

We hope you can attend.

Joppa Shrine Temple initiates new members

Ten members from the higher bodies of the masonic order of masons from eight municipalities were initiated into Joppa Temple in Gulfport recently.

These members became Shriners, or Shrine Masons, who belong to the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine for North America (AAONMS).

The Shrine is an international fraternity of approximately 850,000 members who belong to Shrine Temples throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. Founded in New York City in 1872, the organization is composed solely of 32nd and 33rd degree Scottish Rite Masons and Knights Templar York Rite Masons.

New Nobles are Rudolph R. Hurst of Biloxi; James A. Bergeron and Eugene M. Frazier Sr., both of Gulfport; Richard J. Fayard Sr. and Joseph L. Perniciaro, both of Bay St. Louis; George W. Baby drowns in pool

BY DENA BISNETTE
A 13-month-old girl drowned shortly after noon Monday when she apparently fell into a backyard swimming pool at a Bay St. Louis residence.

According to Bay St. Louis Police Detective David Murtagh, Mahariata Hall apparently crawled out the back door of her foster home at 211 Bay Oaks Drive and fell into the pool, then was unable to climb out again.

The residence is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Baird, who are legally licensed to operate a foster home under State Department of Welfare regulations, Murtagh added.

The State Department of Welfare is investigating the child's death in conjunction with the Bay St. Louis Police Department investigation, Murtagh added.

The baby had apparently been in the pool 10 to 15 minutes when she was found by one of Baird's daughters, Frances Wheeler. Wheeler's sister, Sarah Baird, performed cardiopulmonary resuscitation on the child until personnel from the Bay St. Louis Fire Department arrived and took over.

The child was then transferred to Hancock Medical Center by Mobile Medic, where she was later pronounced dead by Hancock County Coroner Harold Stiglet.

Stiglet said an autopsy was performed Tuesday afternoon and he was still awaiting its results on Wednesday.

According to Murtagh, the pool was contained inside a fenced yard, although there was no separate fence around the pool itself. The residence does meet the requirements of a recently enacted city ordinance requiring that swimming pools be contained in fenced yards.

According to Bay St. Louis Ward One Councilman Lisa Coward, who initiated efforts to have the fence regulation enacted more than two years ago, the Baird home was in no violation of ordinance because the law does not require the fence to be around the pool itself, but only to contain the pool.

Although it has been reported that the passage of ordinance is connected to a previous drowning incident, the June 6 death of four-year-old Curtis Strahan, Coward said her original intention was to protect children from unused pools that may be grown over and not visible.

"It was prompted by a call I got about an old, overgrown pool on Comagere Boulevard and the concern that a child might fall in and not be able to get back out," Coward stated.

She said she arrived late at the meeting when the fence ordinance was passed and was not familiar with the circumstances under which the old proposal had been brought up for discussion.

She stated, however, that the drownings of the two children had led the council to set an earlier date for construction of fences around yards with pools, Sept. 30. The original deadline was Dec. 31.

Wastewater district still trying to obtain Segment IV easements

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District, in conjunction with Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1, is still trying to obtain easements for the county's first publicly owned sewerage outside Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

The deadline for obtaining the easements was Aug. 1, according to Lucien Gex, attorney for the regional district, but the board has contacted the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and has found that the district must initiate eminent domain procedures on remaining easements.

The system is planned as the final part of a four-segment improvement project currently underway in the regional district. The project will eventually link the Bay St. Louis and Waveland sewerage collection systems with an improved version of the existing Waveland treatment plant as primary treatment facility.

The areas selected for the first publicly owned sewerage in the unincorporated part of the county are either included in the recently treated Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1 or in a proposed addition to the county district.

The easements are needed to accommodate a two-inch line and a three-foot well with a grinder pump at each individual building to be served, Gex stated.

He added that the only restrictions the easements will impose on future construction or additions on the property will prohibit the property owner from building anything over the pipe or building anything that would keep maintenance workers from having access to the pump and well.

"The fact the easement is given will not relieve the contractor from having to repair damages resulting from installation," Gex said.

However, the district will be not liable for injuries to people, animals or property after the installation stage.

The people who provide easements will not have to pay a $3,000 installation fee because the installation will be covered by federal and state grant funds expected to pay for 85 percent of the Segment IV project.

Property owners may have to pay for installation later if no additional grant money is received, Gex added.

Residents of the county district including the expansion, if no objections are received at a second public hearing, will still have to pay a monthly user charge.

Gex said property values should go up once the system is connected.

In addition, federal financing will become available to anyone in those areas who wants to buy, sell or mortgage a home and meets other federal financing requirements, Gex explained.

The correct thing for a person who has been given an easement to do is have it notarized and leave it at the Waveland Wastewater Treatment Plant, Gex's office on Coleman Avenue in Waveland or the board of supervisors office in the Hancock County Courthouse, the attorney said.

Federal regulations permit the district to consider increase in property value from having sewerage when a property owner requests an appraisal, and that amount in many cases will exceed any minor damage, he added.

"Appraisals may indicate that people will not be entitled to any additional money at all," he explained.

The total number of easements to be obtained is about 640 and Gex said a small number of them have been turned into his office already.

Employment rate reflects regular seasonal changes

JACKSON, MISS.—The June jobless rate for Mississippi was 9.8 percent, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director, Thomas H. Dyson.

This represents a seasonal increase of nine tenths percentage point from one month ago when the rate was 9.8 percent.

The June 1986 unemployment rate stood at 12.7 percent, two and nine tenths percentage points above this year. Most of the oil related unemployment has been absorbed or removed from the state labor market. The economy is now experiencing the regular seasonal changes.

Place of residence employment for June stood at 1,044,700 in a labor force of 1,157,600. Employment decreased seasonally 10,200 individuals from one month ago. When compared to one year ago, we find a net gain in employment of 16,800.

Manufacturing establishments provided 631,800 jobs in June. Manufacturing jobs increased 1,100 from one month ago and 100 from June 1986. Nonmanufacturing provided 8,500 more jobs this year than one year ago. The monthly decrease of 8,500 was caused by decreases in public school employment and no corresponding increase in summer youth employment since summer youth programs did not operate in June.

There were 116,697 claims filed in June 1987 as compared to 93,875 during May and 141,564 one year ago. There were 9,178 job openings received in June compared to 8,629 last month and 15,316 one year ago. Of those received 7,577; 6,996; and 13,069 were filled by local Employment Service Offices.

Foundation grant enhances 'HELP' line

The New Orleans Help Line—524 H-E-L-P—which has served the Metropolitan New Orleans area for over a quarter of a century, and which is operated by the Committee on Alcoholism & Drug Abuse (CADA), a United Way Agency, has been improved through a grant to purchase a computer system.

According to John M. Key, president of CADA, "The H-E-L-P line is the oldest, most sophisticated, and most comprehensive helping service in the area."

"It has a comprehensive referral system capable of giving information or guiding callers for help for every conceivable problem and concern, regardless of its nature. Emergencies are handled 24 hours of the day, and callers can be 'patched' day and night to appropriate resources."

"Last year, thanks to the support given to the HELP line by the community and the news media, over 80,000 calls were handled."

The computer made available by the Greater New Orleans Regional Foundation, will facilitate the accumulation, expansion, and use of the information on hand, and be helpful in maintaining an updated list of available resources, according to Key.

The Greater New Orleans Regional Foundation is concerned with the quality of life in the New Orleans region. It is a vehicle through which donors may make a gift or bequest of the permanent benefit of the Greater New Orleans Region.

The Foundation is an outgrowth of, and successor of the Community Chest of New Orleans, which was established in 1924. Like the Chest before it, the Foundation fosters the establishment of endowments to serve the local region, now and in the future. It uses the income on these endowments to address the region's needs in the area of arts, education, health, and in social services. It is non-sectarian and non-political.

"With the advent of the additional computer," continued Key, the Greater New Orleans Regional Foundation has made it possible for CADA to have the most updated system in the area of information and referral.

"The easy-to-remember number already prompts calls. Now the response will be quickened." He expressed appreciation to the Foundation for their assistance.

In addition to the 524 H-E-L-P line, CADA has added a Toll Free number for citizens who live outside the calling area.

The HELP Line can be reached toll free from Hancock County by calling 1-800-228-9711 (wait for the tone) then dial 601. The identical services of the 524 H-E-L-P number can be obtained through it.

In addition to the help service by phone, CADA offers individual consultation and evaluation sessions for individuals and families. Alcohol and drug educational programs, training sessions, and special projects can be arranged for schools, colleges, churches, youth groups, senior citizen organizations, clubs, nursing homes, nursing schools, law enforcement agencies, hospitals, institutions, etc., etc. A call to the Help Line can arrange such a program.

All of the assistance given through the Help Line is confidential.

RE-ELECT CURTIS HOLSTON
Representative District 106

I SUPPORT EDUCATION!
Education is top priority in Mississippi and we have seen great improvement since 1983.

1. Grades 1-3 have scored above national norm in reading, math, and language arts.
2. First year kindergarten is rated at national average.
3. Advanced courses in our schools have doubled since 1983.
4. Attendance is up in all grades that are affected by a compulsory attendance law.
5. Mississippi is no longer 50th in the nation in teachers' salary.
6. A school for the gifted was recently approved by State Legislature.
7. ACT scores have increased from 15.5 to 16.3 since 1983. This is the largest percentage increase in the nation.

I respectfully ask for your vote and support.

Louisiana/Mississippi Christmas Tree Association plans grower certification program

The Louisiana/Mississippi Christmas Tree Association is considering a certification program for Christmas Tree growers in the two-state area.

"With this program, we want to instill a strong desire in the growers to produce a better locally-grown tree; a quality tree," says a spokesman for the LA/MS-CTA.

Under the proposed certification program, growers will be trained to raise high-quality Christmas trees that are up to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's standards and higher.

Trained growers will be able to grade a tree according to the USDA standards, simply by looking at it.

After each Christmas tree is graded, a tag with the LA/MS-CTA logo and grower identification number will be attached to the tree to assure retailers and consumers of its quality.

A LA/MS-CTA committee, which was initially appointed during a meeting in Natchez, Mississippi, will vote on a final outline and implementation plan for the certification program at a meeting in Pearl River, La., on July 11.

The Louisiana/Mississippi Christmas Tree Association is a consortium of tree growers dedicated to perfecting all processes of quality, local tree production, from the planting stage to the moment the tree is placed in the home.

COMMUNITY SERVICES—Edna Kleinpeter, left, representing the Hancock Medical Center Auxiliary, talks with Ernestine DeRocha, representing the Hancock County Food Pantry, after recent presentations at the July meeting of Hancock County Community Services Planning Council. DeRocha said the food pantry, established in May 1986 with support from various churches, has served 1,218 people, or more than 300 families, as of June 30. The food pantry works in conjunction with other charitable organizations and usually provides a family with a four- to seven-day supply of food. Located in the old Hancock County Jail behind the courthouse, the facility is open from 9 a.m. until noon Monday through Friday. The telephone number is 467-2700. Kleinpeter provided information on the SecureCare Program which provides a voice-activated communication system in the home which links an individual, particularly an elderly or disabled person, with a hospital that already has pertinent medical information. The system is designed for fast response and can be obtained for $30 per month, she said. More information is available from Hancock Medical Center at 467-9081. (Staff photo by Dena Blissette)

Medical examiners complete death investigation school

JACKSON—Twenty county medical examiner investigators and seven deputy medical examiner investigators have successfully completed the state's first death investigation training school.

Sponsored by the Department of Public Safety's state Medical Examiner's Office and the Mississippi Crime Laboratory, this was the first of three such sessions scheduled this year.

Wilsey Kelly, director of the Mississippi Crime Laboratory, said the second week long training class will be held August 31-September 4 at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy (MLEOTA).

Training is one of several provisions in the Coroners Reorganization Act of 1986 which upgraded standards for county medical examiner investigators.

The legislation mandates that in order to continue to serve in their offices after 1988, all county medical examiners, medical examiner investigators and their deputies are required to both attend the school and pass a comprehensive examination.

The examination, graded by Kelly and Dr. Steve Hayne, acting state medical examiner, was administered at the MLEOTA in Rankin County and was passed by all the participants.

The death investigation course at St. Louis University Medical School, considered one of the best in the nation, was the pattern for the five-day, 40-hour school.

The course was taught by experts in their respective fields on such varied subjects as crime scene investigation, acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS), forensic anthropology, firearms evidence, forensic odontology, forensic serology, and forensic toxicology.

"The relationships established between the participants and the two agencies which share information obtained in death investigations should benefit the counties represented by the medical examiner investigators and their deputies," James L. Roberts Jr., commissioner of public safety, said.

"Any basic or advanced training to increase professionalism in the area of death investigation should be important to every citizen of this state."

"Julis James, crime scene investigation supervisor of the Crime Lab, did a superb job of coordinating the session," Roberts said.

Medical examiner investigators successfully completing the course were: Alvin Carter, Clay County; Sidney Fortenberry, Lawrence County; James Horn, Prentiss County; Ocie Hill, Walthall county; William Jordan, Jasper County; Eva Jones, Yazoo County; Michael Lott, Stone County; Willie McGehee, Amite County; Jimmy McLemore, Webster County; Robert Martin, Hinds County; Percy Peeler, Franklin County; Harry Phillips, Forrest County; Larry Rushing, Benton County; Buddy Roy, Lafayette County; Johnny Smith, Washington County; Harold Stiglet, Hancock County; Leslie Wilson, Lamar County; George Westbrook, Winston County; Dr. Gene Beadle, Calhoun County; and Ben Hunt, Pike County, who is president of the Mississippi Coroner's Association.

Deputy medical examiner investigators successfully completing the training included: Richard Bradford, Warren County; Ruth Houston, Hinds County; Randy McCool, Oktibbeha County; Thomas Richardson, Tishomingo County; Richard Thames, Wayne County; Mark Thornton, Franklin County and Sammy White, Hinds County.

Federal law regulates commercial drivers license holders

Mississippi driver's license holder who possess more than one commercial driver's license are in violation of a new federal law and may be fined up to $5,000.

Multiple license holders should return all commercial licenses to the state(s) of issuance immediately except the license issued in their state of residency, according to Capt. Ron Ford, director of field operations for the Mississippi Highway Patrol's Driver Services Bureau.

This is the first phase of the multifaceted, five-year Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act (CMVSA) of 1986 which became effective July 1, 1987. The purpose of the act is to improve driver quality, develop uniformity in the driver's licensing regulations in the 50 states, and establish a one-license-one-record concept.

Of the 1.8-million licensed drivers in Mississippi, 187,000 hold commercial licenses, Ford said.

"The first mandate of the CMVSA outlines some very detailed responsibilities that are now in effect for holders of commercial licenses," Ford said.

"Employers of commercial motor vehicle operators also have specific responsibilities detailed in this measure which has been developed by the Secretary of Transportation," he added.

Under provisions of the act the commercial driver's license holder has reporting duties both as an individual driver and as an employee of a firm.

Ford outlined the immediate obligations of holders of commercial licenses:

Holders of more than one commercial driver's license should retain the license issued in the license holder's state of residence and return all other commercial licenses to the other states that issued the license.

Residents of Mississippi who are licensed to drive commercial vehicles should only have a commercial license issued by the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol. All other commercial licenses should be returned to the licensing state.

Within 30 days of being issued a ticket for violating a traffic law in a state that did not issue the commercial driver's license, the holder of the license must notify the licensing agency in the state where the license was issued.

In other words, if the holder of a commercial license issued by the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol is ticketed in another state, that licensee must report the citation to the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol.

Reporting citations issued for parking violations is not mandated in this provision.

In addition to notifying the license holder's state of issuance when a citation is received, the license holder has 30 days to report receipt of the citation to his/her employer.

Holders of a commercial driver's license whose license is suspended, revoked, or cancelled by a state for any period, or who becomes disqualified from operating a commercial motor vehicle for any period for any reason must notify his/her employer; and

When holders of a commercial driver's license seek employment, they must inform the prospective employer at the time of application if they have been of a commercial motor vehicle during the past 10

Ford said guidelines for employers of operators of commercial motor vehicles provide that:

No employer shall knowingly allow, permit, or authorize an employee to operate a commercial motor vehicle in the United States during any period when the employee has a driver's license suspended, revoked, or cancelled by a state, has lost the right to operate a commercial motor vehicle in a state, has been disqualified from operating a commercial motor vehicle or has more than one commercial driver's license.

In other words, the employers of persons using commercial driver's license have the responsibility of ensuring that his or her employee has only one commercial driver's license and that it is valid.

"The long range objective of the five-year plan is to make highways safer for all motorists," Ford said.

He said that in less than one year, additional minimum federal standards will be issued for testing and ensuring the fitness of persons who operate commercial motor vehicles.

"When the Secretary of Transportation issues the standards for testing and physical fitness of commercial driver's license holders, legislation will be required in Mississippi to abide by some of the provisions included in the measure."

"The Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol will keep the public informed concerning future CMVSA mandates," Ford said.

Check SHERIFF RONALD PETERSON'S Leadership Record

HIGH SCHOOL LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson, at Bay St. Louis High School, was elected by his classmates president of his class all four years. He was also captain of the football, basketball and baseball team in his senior year, and upon graduation received the Most Outstanding Athlete Award.

COLLEGE LEADERSHIP

At Pearl River Junior College, Sheriff Peterson was chosen a monitor in charge of his dormitory.

MILITARY LEADERSHIP

Sheriff Peterson served four years in the United States Marine Corps and is a Vietnam veteran. In December 1965, Sheriff Peterson, then a squad leader serving in Vietnam, guided a squad of Marines deep into the jungles of Vietnam on a reconnaissance patrol to gather information about enemy activity. Under extremely hazardous conditions and enemy fire, Sheriff Peterson accomplished his mission and was meritoriously promoted to the rank of Sergeant. He received numerous military medals and upon completion of his military service, he received an honorable discharge and was highly recommended for re-enlistment.

LAW ENFORCEMENT LEADERSHIP

"Sheriff Peterson has been serving as your Sheriff for the last 7 1/2 years. Prior to that, he was a Narcotics Investigator, Chief Investigator, and Chief Deputy. He has 16 continuous years service at the Hancock County Sheriff's Department. During Sheriff Peterson's administration, more criminal indictments have been returned in the history of Hancock County. Of the Grand Jury indictments returned, Sheriff Peterson's office has an unbelievable 99% conviction rate.

"Sheriff Peterson has an extensive background in Narcotic investigation and will continue to focus his leadership toward the drug problem in Hancock County. He has participated in over 1400 drug-related operations that resulted in hundreds of arrests and convictions occurred in Sheriff Peterson's Administration. During these undercover operations, large seizures of money, cars and assets were taken from the drug dealers. The Sheriff's Department can now purchase two police vehicles a year from money (confiscated) from drug dealers on the interest along, while the principal of $250,000 stays intact in a local bank. This results in a savings to the taxpayer.

"Sheriff Peterson was instrumental in getting the new Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility with the help of the voting public. The new facility is now operating efficiently, and is now operating very business like. By housing federal inmates, an income of over $300,000.00 a year is paid to Hancock County, that makes the jail self-supporting. A county-inmate work program has also been implemented. Prisoners are now working at a county farm to raise vegetables to cut cost on the food bill at the new facility. This, also, results in a savings to the taxpayer.

"Sheriff Peterson is instrumental in leading murder investigations that occurred in Hancock County. Since he was elected Sheriff, Hancock County, has an excellent record for solving these violent type crimes. By solving these crimes, the murder rate has dropped tremendously in Hancock County this year.

"Sheriff Peterson is a leader in all types of modern law enforcement techniques. He is a graduate of the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy basic police class. He graduated from the Law Enforcement Academy's investigation class. He is a graduate of the University of Mississippi's narcotic class and attended numerous law enforcement seminars throughout the state. He is a member of the Mississippi Sheriffs Association and National Sheriffs Association.

In 1983, Sheriff Peterson was re-elected by the widest majority of votes than any other sheriff candidate in the history of Hancock County. He is again asking for your help on August 4.

"Cooking With Love" a small, spiral bound book, is aptly characterized by its author as "food for thought on the nutritional and emotional needs of the cancer patient on chemotherapy."

The author, Jacqueline "Jackie" Leonhard, is a former New Orleans newspaper woman who has been deeply involved in the health care field, as public relations counselor and in other aspects, for 35 years, and has written a number of health-related papers and publications.

Her interest in cooking led her to write this unusual booklet, a sort of travelogue, you might say, through that difficult land of coping with nourishing a loved one stricken with cancer - and a travelogue, may I add quite happily - with a happy ending!

It all began when Jackie's husband, Jim Leonhard, was diagnosed in February, 1986, as having inoperable lung cancer. His physician, Dr. Jayne Gurtler, a cancer specialist on the staff of East Jefferson General Hospital in Metairie, La., recommended that he go to New York or Chicago, where studies are underway on the use of heavier chemotherapy in such cases.

At Jackie's urgent request, Dr. Gurtler agreed to use the procedure herself - and from there, the combination of intensive chemotherapy and extra nutrition took off - with good results in this case!

Jim was admitted to the hospital's Center for Living With Cancer (I like the upbeat tone of that title, don't you?) and Jackie began coping with the paradox of chemotherapy - it's necessary - but the body must have food, and the side effects of "chemo" make eating a problem at the same time.

So, Jackie began reading everything she could find that might help, also experimenting on her own - finding, as most of us who have cared for a loved one in such a situation, that several smaller meals during the day are better tolerated, that a good breakfast starts the day off better, that you can easily add food values such as wheat germ to meat loaf and other ground meat dishes, juices to sauces, and so on, and on.

The booklet is not a panacea, as its author readily admits, adding that, as we know, "Food won't cure cancer, but good nutrition is vital in helping maintain the patient's strength so that he or she can better tolerate current methods of treatment that are prolonging and saving lives today."

The booklet has only one chapter of recipes, but sprinkled throughout are ideas and common sense suggestions for improving on the food for cancer patients. Also, throughout the book, Jackie stresses the need for the caregiver to check with the patient's doctor about any special precautions or needs.

Another special ingredient Jackie mentions is: COMPANY! That's as helpful as any nutritious meal on earth to cancer patients - as well as all others, lest we forget!

As for recipes, have you ever, ever, ever tried to make bread pudding with anything on earth than stale French bread? Nor had I - a desecration to anyone reared in New Orleans and on the Gulf Coast!

But, in this book, in addition to giving a recipe for bread pudding, made with leftover French bread, Jackie suggests the substitution of other whole grain, multigrain, or bran and fruit bread - I tried it, I liked it - despite my upbringing - French bread only!

Here's Jackie's quick and easy bread pudding recipe - after all, when you're busy being a caregiver to a loved one, you haven't much time for Cardon Bleu dishes, do you? Here's:

JACKIE'S BREAD PUDDING AND VARIATIONS

1 pint milk, scalded.
1 cup stale French bread, cubed or torn in small pieces
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon each, grated nutmeg and ground cinnamon
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla (or try almond for a pleasing change)

Pour milk over bread crumbs, add salt and sugar. Beat eggs until light and add to bread mixture with butter and flavoring and pour into 1-quart buttered casserole. Set casserole into a pan of hot water. Bake 40 or 50 minutes or until knife inserted near edge comes out clean. (Four servings.)

Serve the easy way, says Jackie, with a dollop of vanilla ice cream atop or make the traditional lemon or rum flavored sauce, as you and your patient like. Variations: Add at the last a quarter cup of chopped toasted pecans, raisins and drained pineapple tidbits - and for extra nutrition, substitute whole grain or other breads for the French bread, heresy though you may call it!

Published by the non-profit East Jefferson General Hospital Foundation, a major sponsor of the hospital's Center for Living With Cancer, "Cooking With Love" may be ordered by mail for $4 postage paid, from: EGGH Foundation, P.O. Box 8213, Metairie, La. 70001-9987.

P.S. This little booklet has good nutrition tips for others, those not fighting cancer, too - enrich the diet!

And, Jackie happily reports, chemotherapy reduced Jim's cancer enough to permit surgical removal of the right lung - and laboratory tests showed him cancer-free, as he remains today!

Blueberry research to produce new markets

By Paati Drapala
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Southerners do not eat many blueberries. Up North, people do.

If research and marketing efforts by the state's blueberry industry are successful, people everywhere may be eating more and more blueberries, especially those grown in Mississippi.

Horticulturists with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station and the U.S. Department of Agriculture hope to breed blueberry plants that will bear ripe fruit the first week in May.

If these blueberry plants can be bred, then Mississippi can have its blueberries to market a month before growers in Michigan and New Jersey ship theirs, according to Dr. Jimmy Spiers, research leader with the Small Fruits Laboratory in Poplarville. The laboratory is a division of the USDA.

"What we're talking about is establishing a new market for our blueberries," Spiers said. "With this plant, we'll be trying to sell blueberries to northern and Canadian markets when they don't have their berries."

Blueberry plants in Mississippi start bearing fruit the first week in June and continue producing until mid-July. New Jersey and Michigan blueberry plants begin bearing fruit the third week in June and continue through August, said John Braswell, area horticulturist with the MCEs.

"Early in the season, the price is high because there are not many blueberries on the market," Braswell said. "When the ones from New Jersey come in, the price drops."

If Mississippi blueberry growers can enter the market earlier than growers in other states, they can take advantage of higher prices. "If Mississippi can get early varieties, we'll be the first ones on the market, and we'll have the whole market for that period of time," Braswell said.

State blueberry growers would also avoid direct competition with Michigan and New Jersey if an earlier-bearing variety is developed because the Mississippi crop would complete harvesting about the time competing berries enter the market and lower the price.

"It's not that we don't want anyone else to do well in selling their blueberries, it's that we want everyone to do well," said Asa Bryant, owner of Bryland Farms in Covington County. Bryant raises 20 acres of blueberries and a few acres of blackberries.

"One person or one state couldn't produce enough berries to satisfy the market," Bryant said.

Although the "rabbiteye" species of blueberry is native to Mississippi, no effort to begin a blueberry industry was made before 1970. After Hurricane Camille destroyed the tung tree industry in southern Mississippi, researchers looked for an alternative crop. They found one in blueberries.

"When we started, I doubt you could find one acre of blueberries in the state," Spiers said. "Since 1976, the industry has steadily grown, thanks to help from Dr. Richard Mullenax, horticulture leader with the Extension Service, and John Braswell."

Researchers are interested in combining the best characteristics of rabbiteye with those found in the "highbush" species of blueberries. Highbush is grown in Michigan and other northern areas.

Highbush has a shorter time period between blooming and fruiting. Rabbiteye is more vigorous in that it grows faster and produces more fruit per plant, Spiers said.

"Rabbiteye has the ability to get a lot of fruit and still maintain fruit size," Spiers said.

Even though new varieties of blueberries will be bred in Mississippi, rabbiteye will continue to be the backbone of the state blueberry industry.

"I see these new varieties opening up new markets," Spiers said.

"If our efforts prove successful, the fruit from a 'southern highbush' will be ripe before any others in the nation and this will open up northern markets to our blueberries."

Want your flower garden to do double duty this year? If so, be sure to select flowers that not only add to the attractiveness of your landscape, but also can be cut for indoor bouquets.

How do you choose plants for a "cutting" garden?

First, unless you like miniature arrangements, select plants with long stems. If you want to match your indoor color scheme, choose flower colors accordingly.

Variety of textures and shapes, plus the ability to last finishes the requirements.

Rounded flowers are the center of attention and complement the vertical lines. For this, grow geraniums, "Gigi" gerbera daisies, marigolds, mums and zinnias.

Zinnias actually benefit from being cut as it encourages them to grow and produce more blooms.

The "Pulcino" series in bronze, lavender, red, rose, salmon and yellow is one of the most weather resistant zinnias, producing 2-3 inch, semi-double, long-lasting cut flowers on 10-50 inch stems.

For a more double, longer stemmed zinnia, choose the "Yellow Marvel," as happy in the middle of the border as it is in the vase.

For filler material, use something light and airy, such as coleus flowers, ageratum, baby's breath or ferns.

Extend the indoor life of your bouquet of cutting flowers in the early morning or late afternoon with a sharp scissors; "hardening off" the flowers in a cool spot; and placing the finished product out of drafts and direct sunlight.

Change or add water often and use a floral preservative. You'll be enjoying your garden indoors as much as you cherish it outside.

Superconductivity promises 'smooth' future for power company

Supercomputers the size of pocket calculators, trains skimming on electromagnetic tracks and other futuristic inventions may be just around the corner if current breakthroughs in the conduction of electricity continue.

Superconductivity, or the removal of resistance to the flow of electricity, is taking giant developmental steps in the scientific community. In fact, superconductivity has just about taken over the agenda of the world of science, which means an unlimited number of practical applications could follow.

"The impact superconductivity could have on the world is tremendous," Mississippi Power Company Engineer Paul Harrison said. "Electric companies and their customers could save millions of dollars spent on lost energy."

Since the introduction of electricity it's been known that electrical energy is lost when it flows through a conductor. On a large scale utility system, these losses add up to five to ten percent of all the electricity generated. Superconductivity may provide the ability to eliminate a great deal of these losses.

Superconductivity has been achieved in certain materials from some time, but only at around 400 degrees Fahrenheit below zero.

Now, however, scientists have been able to reach superconductivity at much higher temperatures with new ceramic-like materials and the race is on to continue raising the temperatures until they are nearer normal climatic conditions.

"Because of the resistance of electrical lines, transformers and other conductors, electrical losses can account for several million dollars worth of electricity a year for Mississippi Power Company," Harrison said. "If a material can be developed that will conduct electricity with super efficiency at reasonable temperatures, the cost of these losses to Mississippi Power Company and its customers would be significantly reduced."

The elimination of most resistance in conductors would also allow computer microchips to operate much faster and make possible the production of super powerful magnets to levitate trains on tracks or move heavy machinery around plant floors with ease.

"The discoveries of warm superconductivity are so new and so limited to laboratory environments that we can't be sure how and when they will affect Mississippi Power Company," Harrison said. "But we do know numerous aspects of generating, transmitting and delivering electricity could be positively affected by the technology."

Current research shows electric companies will most likely be initially affected by superconductivity through the development of superconducting underground power transmission lines and high efficiency generators and motors.

"Widespread use of this technology in the generation, transmission and distribution of electricity is hardly conceivable in the near future," Harrison said. "Scientists have many difficult questions to answer before electric utilities could apply superconductivity with any benefit to customers."

"Even with the almost daily breakthroughs in warmer superconductivity, the reality is that researchers are probably still far away from introducing practical superconductivity to the world. Part of the reason is that the new superconductors are only able to handle small amounts of electrical current before losing their superconductivity."

T. Graham Brown's "Brilliant Conversationalist" video, single and LP are taking radio and TV outlets by storm. The single has climbed up Billboard's Country Charts, to 28 this week.

The Capitol Records release, follows Brown's two consecutive No. 1's "Hell And High Water" and "Don't Go To Strangers." The "Brilliant Conversationalist" video is one of two country clips added to VH-1 this year.

The concert is being presented by WGCM Radio and Mississippi Magic, both of Gulfport. Tickets are on sale at the Coliseum Box and TicketMaster Outlets. Charge by phone 601-388-8222 or 1-800-535-5151. Visa & Mastercard accepted. $14 reserved seat ($1 charge for TicketMaster).

Two classical works featured on "Mississippi Concert Hall"

Two classical works recorded in the state will be played on the next edition of "Mississippi Concert Hall," which is scheduled for broadcast on PRM at 9 a.m., Thursday, July 23. A repeat broadcast will air at 1 p.m., Sunday, July 26.

The final two movements from Cesar Franck's Sonata in A major for Violin and Piano are performed by violinist Brian Gum and pianist Karen Laubengayer. The recording was made at Jackson State University's F.D. Hall Music Center.

The Jackson Symphony Orchestra, conducted by guest conductor Larry Newland, will perform Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4 in f minor, opus 36. This performance was recorded March 24, 1987.

"Mississippi Concert Hall" is hosted and produced by William Fulton. PRM, a division of Mississippi ETV, is broadcast FM frequency 90.3 Biloxi.

Ambulance service coverage expanded

Members of ambulance services along the Mississippi Gulf Coast have access to free emergency service in Forrest, Lamar and Pearl River counties under an agreement among three South Mississippi ambulance companies, effective immediately.

"We know a good thing when we see it," said Harvel Smith, executive director of AAA Ambulance Service which serves Forrest, Lamar and Pearl River counties.

Smith was referring to a May agreement between Mississippi Gulf Coast ambulance services Mobile Medic and Amserv to honor each other's memberships.

Mobile Medic's primary service area is west of Debuys Road and all of Hancock County. Amserv's primary service area is east of Debuys Road and all of Jackson County.

During their current membership drive, Mobile Medic and Amserv have stressed the fact that if you join one ambulance service, you automatically become a member of the other at no additional charge above the $39 membership fee. The membership drive ends July 31, after which date new memberships cannot be accepted.

"People in our service area have really responded to the benefit of extra protection," said Tommy Newman, director of Amserv. "We expect to have a very successful membership drive," Newman said.

John Rester, president of Mobile Medic, outlined the impact of the agreement with AAA Ambulance Service.

"Basically, no matter where you are in these six southeast counties of Mississippi, you're covered," Rester said.

"Let's say, you're from Ocean Springs, driving in Hattiesburg, you have a wreck and have to go to Forrest General by ambulance. Well, if you were an Amserv member, your emergency ambulance service would be free," said Rester.

"Likewise, if an AAA member from Hattiesburg were here on the Coast on vacation and had a medical emergency, their ambulance service would be free," Rester said.

Rester explained that the agreement between the three companies is a service contract agreement, and not some form of insurance. Although members are never charged for emergency medical ground transportation, each company reserves the right to bill third parties such as a member's insurance company.

Salad vegetables offer special family treats

Don't be a slave to head lettuce or leaf lettuce when you plan greens for salads.

It's true that lettuce makes a salad crisp and fresh, but so do a lot of other greens.

So, unchain yourself from old time habits and vary the "green" salad ingredients. They'll provide new flavors, colors and textures to the entire meal.

Due to modern modes of transportation, salad greens are available year-round. But springtime brings the biggest supply, and it's the season when the quality is tops.

The lettuce family alone has a quiet selection: iceberg or "head" lettuce is the most popular. It's available all year. A compact and crispy head distinguishes it from other types.

Butterhead lettuce has a soft head and its inner leaves feel oily or buttery. Its leaves are generally greener and smoother than the iceberg type.

Big Boston and Bibb are common varieties. This lettuce is quite a fragile product and demands the utmost care in handling. Its popularity undoubtedly suffers because of its fragile nature.

Romaine or Cos lettuce, known by its elongated head and stiff leaves, has a slightly stronger flavor than other types. Its crispness holds up well in salads and is becoming more and more popular.

Leaf or "bunching" lettuce is distinguished by its loose leaves and nonforming head. There are both green and red leaf lettuces. Red leaf lettuce is probably becoming more "wanted"—due to its color.

Fresh spinach is in season most of the year with larger supplies available in the spring and then again in the fall.

This crisp, smooth, dark-green vegetable is an ideal addition to salads, used as a salad base or as a salad alone. Fresh spinach is also an excellent vegetable when cooked very lightly.

Endive is recognized by its curly leaves, has a slightly bitter flavor and a crispness that's desirable for salads. Restaurants appreciate its ability to "hold up" in salads. They undoubtedly use it more than the homemaker. There are two general types:

Narrow leaf, commonly called endive, has curly ragged edges leaves which curl at the ends. The center of the head is yellowish white.

Broad leaf, marketed as escarole, is another variety of endive. Its leaves do not curl. It, too, has dark green outer leaves and a bleached pale center.

Water cress gives a lift to tossed salads. It is known for its pungent flavor and brilliant color. Grown in fresh running water, it is available most of the year with peak supplies in May, June and July.

Cabbage, fresh, crisp and green or red in color, is ideal in the salad bowl. New cabbage is on the market now and prices are attractive to the food budget. A little later Chinese cabbage will be available.

Parsley, used primarily for garnishing, is also good in salads. The fresh green taste and appearance of chopped parsley in a tossed salad gives it new life. Parsley is a biennial plant of the same family as celery, carrots and parsnips. It is available most of the year with peak in June and July.

When selecting salad greens, keep these points in mind: the greener the leaf, the greater the food value. Leaves should be crisp, green and fresh looking. Head should be firm.

A cool temperature is necessary to keep salad greens fresh, whether sold in bulk or in cellophane packages. Discolored areas on outer leaves may indicate interior decay. Prepackaged greens may cost a few cents more than bulk forms, but consider the added convenience of a trimmed, washed and easy-to-store product.

Plan to use greens soon after buying for best quality and nutritive value.

Ochsner studying treatment of chronic non-A non-B hepatitis

NEW ORLEANS—A study to determine the effectiveness of interferon in the treatment of chronic hepatitis is currently underway at the Ochsner Clinic of New Orleans and the Ochsner Clinic of Baton Rouge. Ochsner is one of only 11 major medical centers in the country to take part in the testing of substance.

"Interferon is a natural substance, protein made by the cells of the body which helps fight viral infections. It has been synthesized by bio-engineering and in previous studies has been evaluated and approved for use in the treatment of hairy cell leukemia," says Dr. Luis A. Balart, a specialist in gastroenterology at Ochsner in New Orleans, who is chief investigator of the study. Dr. Terry J. Ortego, a gastroenterologist in the Ochsner Clinic of Baton Rouge, is co-investigator for the study.

"In a pilot study conducted by the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., alpha interferon was given to ten patients with chronic non-A non-B hepatitis. In eight of the 10 patients, test results of inflammatory activity of the liver, which is typical of the disease, fell to normal. That indicated a need for a controlled study," Balart adds.

Chronic non-A non-B hepatitis is an incurable disease. The most common way to get it is through blood transfusions. Most people who have it experience a mild form which produces fatigue and malaise. It can develop other symptoms such as jaundice and enlarged liver, and may progress to cirrhosis of the liver which involves permanent scarring, and loss of liver function, he points out.

The study will involve some 200 chronic hepatitis patients nationwide with about 20 being treated at Ochsner. Alpha interferon will be given to patients in the study of six months while a control group of patients are only observed for that length of time. At the end of the six-month period patients in the control group will also be treated with interferon, Dr. Balart emphasizes.

"Alpha interferon must be given by injection, three times a week. Because it is the substance that the body uses to fight viral infections, the most common side effect is for patients to develop mild flu-like symptoms such as fever and muscle aches. These generally disappear after the first week of treatment. There will be frequent blood tests during the study and patients will also have a liver biopsy before and at the end of the time the medicine is administered. The biopsy is done on an outpatient basis and patients will be able to go home in about four hours.

More patients with chronic hepatitis are being sought for the study. For information call Barbara Neighbors, research coordinator, at (504) 838-4015.

Each time he fights, we win.

As a combat leader in Vietnam, he faced a new battle each day.

Now, Cono Caranna is fighting his battles in the courtroom, against a different kind of enemy. Drugs, rape, murder. All the felonies in our District. And he's winning.

Under Cono Caranna, our District Attorney's office is handling more court cases than ever before in its history. Over 2,000 last year alone. With more jury trials than ever before.

And he's filed for over one million dollars in confiscated cash and cars from drug pushers.

But Cono's commitment doesn't stop there. He's gone into the classrooms of our schools and established important programs to help keep our kids off the streets and out of trouble. Programs like Latchkey and Me-ology.

Cono Caranna has restored our faith in the D.A.'s office. He's reminded us what good public service is all about.

He's redefined the job of District Attorney. Made the D.A.'s office a strong partner in the fight against crime.

And in the process, he's given us hope for a brighter future.

It's not an easy job, but it's his job. That's why he keeps on fighting. And that's why he keeps on winning.

That's why, he's our D.A.

EMPLOYEE OF THE YEAR
Newton C. "Bubba" Degelos of New Orleans has been named Martin Marietta Michoud Aerospace Employee of the Year. Degelos, a specialist in the transportation and handling department, had previously been named the company's 1986 August Employee of the Month. Recognized as a leader among his co-workers, Degelos was commended for setting an exemplary safety record. During his more than 10 years with Martin Marietta, he has never been involved in an accident. This safety performance is unmatched by employees in the transportation and handling department, according to Richard M. Davis, Michoud Aerospace president.

Elderly should beware of summer heat

Soaring summertime temperatures can be especially dangerous for the elderly, and the Mississippi Council on Aging (MCOA) of the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs is urging older persons to take precautions to avoid heat-related problems such as exhaustion and strokes.

"Elderly persons and especially those with heart and circulatory diseases, diabetes and strokes are more susceptible to heat exhaustion and heat strokes during hot and humid weather," said Dr. Edward M. Lowicki, a Jackson physician and member of the Council on Aging.

Heat stroke is a serious heat-related problem and requires immediate medical attention and treatment by a physician. Symptoms include faintness, dizziness, headaches, nausea, loss of consciousness, flushed skin, rapid pulse and a body temperature of 104 F or higher.

The symptoms for heat exhaustion, Lowicki said, are similar but take longer to develop. Other symptoms include sweating, giddiness and weakness.

"The best way to deal with the heat is to remain indoors in an air-conditioned room if possible," Lowicki said. "If your home is not air-conditioned you might consider going to a cool public place like a library, store or senior center during the hottest time of the day."

Other suggestions to help elderly Mississippians cope with the heat include:

- Drink plenty of liquids such as water, fruit and vegetable juices and iced tea to replace fluids lost by sweating.
- Avoid alcoholic beverages or fluids that contain too much salt, since salt can complicate existing health problems like high blood pressure.
- Stay out of direct sunlight and avoid strenuous activity.

* Wear light-weight, light-colored, loose-fitting clothes.
* Take baths and showers, place ice bags or wet towels on the body and use electric fans carefully to cool.

* We urge all older persons to take the heat seriously and don't ignore danger signs," Lowicki said.

For more information on subjects of interest to the elderly, phone the Council on Aging at 949-2013 or contact your local area agency on aging.

Bay team to host state Babe Ruth tournament

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis Babe Ruth team (ages 16-18 division) is hosting the state tournament beginning this weekend at the Bay High field. The eight-team double elimination tournament will feature, in addition to Bay St. Louis, teams from Mc-Comb, Florence, Corinth, Biloxi, Gulfport, Yazoo City and Helena. Tournament play will begin Friday at 5 p.m. with Biloxi and Gulfport teams playing in the opening game. The Bay St. Louis team will face its first opponent later that evening.

This game against Corinth is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. Four games will be played Saturday and Sunday. There will be two games Monday and the finals are set for Tuesday. According to Manager Ronald Artigues, many of the players on this team have been playing together as a team for nearly 10 years. "They will be playing for their fourth state title as a team," Artigues said. This team has won Babe Ruth state titles as 13-year-olds, 15-year-olds and 16-year-olds, he added.

In addition to playing ball in the Babe Ruth League, this team played in the American Legion League and currently this season has a record of 33 wins and 10 losses.

As a team, they have played ball in seven states and have won several tournaments. Fred Weems of Bay St. Louis is the coach.

Team members and high school teams they played on include: Brian Laneaux, Jesse Logan, Glen Rose, Eddie Bourgeois and Doug Power, all from Bay Senior High; Jay Artigues, Mike Weems, David Pitolo, Mark Logan and Lloyd Nicaud, all from St. Stanislaus; Bobby Jackson of Harrison Central; Matt Crosby and Todd Sims, both of Long Beach; and Ronnie Reynolds of Picayune.

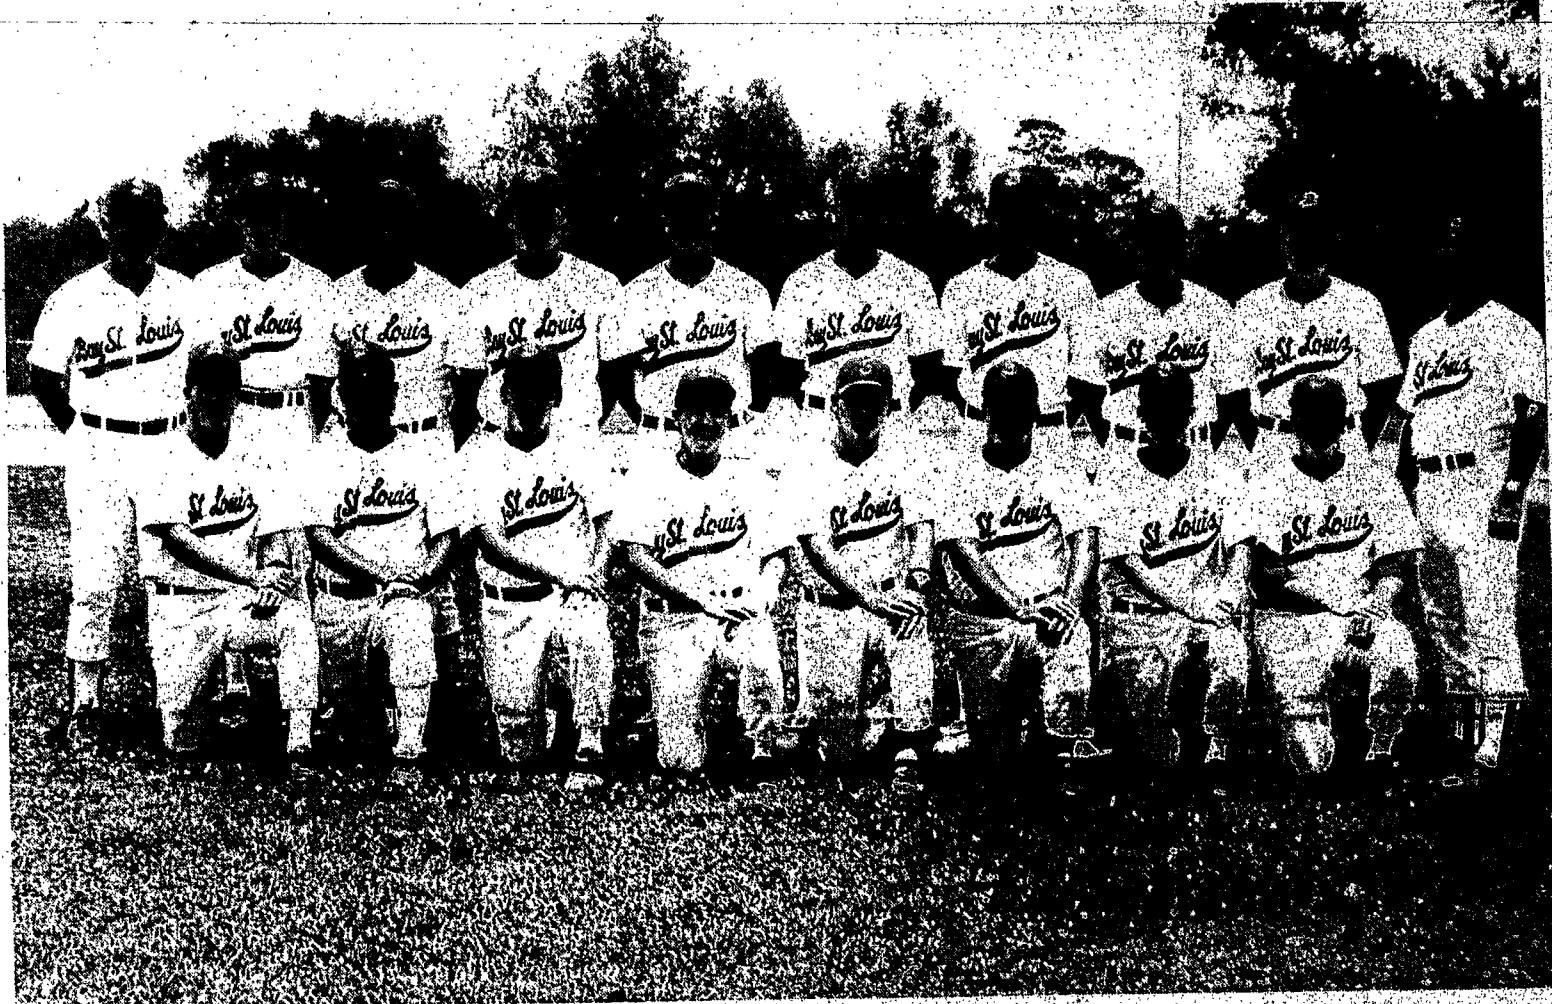

Starting players and positions are: Brian Laneaux, first base; Jay Artigues, second base; Monty Strong, third base; Mike Weems, catcher; David Pitolo, shortstop;

Stars defeat Slidell 11-7

St. Rose Stars defeated the Slidell Creoles 11-7 in Bay St. Louis Sunday, July 19.

Jeffrey Smith was the winning pitcher with 18 strikeouts. Smith batted five for five and Carl Carter hit two for two.

Smith hit a two-run homer in the first inning. Carter hit a three-run homer and Matt Fairclough hit a solo homer, both in the sixth inning.

St. Rose Stars will host the East Gulfport Stars on Sunday, July 26. No admission will be charged and spectators are welcome. vera, echo 7-23

Sportsman's license renewal delayed

JACKSON— The Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation announced that hunters renewing their Sportsman's License should expect their new license in early September.

"We've changed the Sportsman's License from a paper material to plastic and we've designed and printed a new Sportsman's License decal," said Joe Stone, executive director.

"We've had a lot of requests to do that, but the changes have caused a delay in shipping the licenses to us. We'll get them back to folks as soon as we receive and process them, probably by early September," said Stone.

According to Stone, hunters who have renewed their Sportsman's License should keep both their renewal stub and cancelled check. Conservation officers can call Jackson Office by radio to check the validity of the license.

"We regret the delay, but we want the best product we can get for Mississippi sportsmen," said Stone. "We appreciate your patience and cooperation."

The $25 Sportsman's License allows a person to fish and to hunt all legal species as regulated and allows holders to hunt with bow and arrow and muzzleloader during those special seasons. However, state and federal duck stamps are required in addition to this license.

The Sportsman's License is the only license which is renewable by mail and for which duplicates are issued free of charge.

Carey College names new tennis coach

HATTIESBURG—Athletic Director Steve Knight has announced the signing of Jack Jones as the new head tennis coach at William Carey College. His duties will begin with the fall semester.

"We're very happy with the selection of Jack as head tennis coach. Based on his experience working with sports programs for the past 25 years, we feel we've filled this position with a very capable person," Knight said.

"I hope to build a quality team with quality people, and hope they will be a reflection of William Carey College both on and off the court and in the classroom," Jones said.

A Cincinnati native, the 56-year-old Jones came to Carey as a student in January 1986 after retiring as a supervisor with a chemical company where he had been employed for 31 years. Jones was encouraged to play on the tennis team by his son, Matt, who was then a graduate assistant coach. The elder Jones was also a member of the 1987 Crusader team.

Prior to his association with the chemical company, Jones was a third baseman in the Cincinnati Reds organization.

Before his move to Mississippi, Jones was ranked third in the age 55-over category in Cincinnati, and with Matt was ranked second in the father-son category.

The elder Jones has competed in three seniors tournaments in Mississippi and won them all. He began playing tennis at age 45.

Jones and his wife Ruby both love Hattiesburg and hope to make it their permanent home. The couple has two grown children, Matt, who works at the Queen City Racquet Club in Cincinnati, and Karen, a school teacher in Cincinnati.

Heritage Fund to help birds

JACKSON—Injured hawks and owls will have a better chance of getting back to the wild thanks to people who donated part of their state income tax refund to the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Funds.

A $1,000 grant was awarded recently by the Wildlife Heritage Fund to Jackson Zoological Park, Inc. for construction of a flight cage for injured birds of prey, or raptors. Raptors are protected by state and federal laws.

"The flight cage will be used to rehabilitate the 50 or so raptors we get from across the state each year," said Barbara Barrett, executive director of the Jackson Zoo.

"Our goal is to return as many of these birds as possible to the wild. The money from the Wildlife Heritage Fund will certainly help us do that," said Barrett.

"We're glad to work with the Jackson Zoo on this project," said Joe Stone, executive director of the Department of Wildlife Conservation, the state agency which administers the Wildlife Heritage Fund monies.

"Our officers often get called to pick up hurt birds and many times they bring them to the Jackson Zoo," said Stone. "With the new flight cage, the birds will have an even better chance of recovery and release."

The Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Fund is maintained by contributions from state income tax refunds and individual donations. Monies are used to conserve and manage nongame and endangered species and to protect Mississippi's natural areas.

Over $50,000 was donated to the Wildlife Heritage fund in 1986. That money has been used to help fund bald eagle restoration on the Gulf Coast, to produce educational materials, and to contract research projects on nongame and endangered species statewide.

For more information about the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Fund, contact the Department of Wildlife Conservation, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205.

Bay-based Merchants advance to playoffs

The Gulf Coast Merchants Team of Bay St. Louis took the District I Class B Softball Tournament championship.

The tournament was sponsored July 18 and 19 by Boys Clubs of America at the Hiller Park complex in Biloxi.

By virtue of their win, the team will advance to State Playoffs to be held in Vicksburg July 31 through Aug. 2.

The Gulf Coast Merchants Team is comprised of area athletes from Bay High, St. Stanislaus, Pass Christian and Gulfport.

Bay High alumni on the team are Clark, Mark and Craig Breland, Brian "Hooty" and Scotty Adam, Steve Seymour, Harold Netto, Mike Proulx, Mike Ladner, Frank Henry and Rod Morris.

St. Stanislaus grads are Gus Aime and Sean Logan.

The Pass Christian representative is Mackie Dedeaux and Gulfport is represented by Mike Lavender.

The team is coached by Mark Breland, and the manager for the State Playoffs will be Howard McNeill Sr. of Gulfport.

Sponsorship of the team has been from a number of Gulf Coast area merchants.

Summer fishing

The longest challenge to a bass fisherman's patience—outside of the Northern winter—is the two to four months of the summer period.

Summer challenges to the angler consist of an overabundance in the natural food chain and stable feeding patterns. Bass hold in whatever pattern they have established, be it around structure, in the deep, or along river channels. But a hard and fast rule, no matter where they are, is that there is heavy feeding toward dawn and dusk.

"The main thing in this part of the country is to look for a little deeper water, a little deeper structure," suggests Missouri-based Guido Hibdon of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "If you discover enough points, you'll find bass."

Some of Hibdon's favorite lures for this period include a great big worm with an 1/8-ounce slip sinker which he uses off drops in about 20-25 feet of water. In clear water he suggests using a Fast Gibson lure between 1/8-ounce up to 1/4-ounce.

"That's a good little bait for everybody," Hibdon states. "It's an easy little bait to fish." On rivers, he might also use a crankbait. Hibdon also favors a Bobby Garland spotted jig, anywhere from a 3/8-ounce up and in clear sparkle, smoked sparkle, or smoked with red flick to resemble a crawfish.

For nighttime anglers, Hibdon suggests using a single spin spinnerbait. "For moonlit nights you can use a white spinnerbait, a 1/2-ounce with a No. 11 white frog chunk on it. On dark nights use a black single pin with a No. 5 blade and work it slow like you would a jig."

One thing to take seriously is the daily weather patterns. I touched upon weather patterns briefly a while back in my article "Variables of spawning and weather fronts."

Bill Sparks, also a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, found that "based on the full moon and the water temperature, bass are going to move up on a bank. We've also found, surprisingly, in the middle of the summertime those fish will also move back into the bedding during a full moon. The full moon, I think, triggers an instinct in warm water...not only will the male do it, but the female will also move up on the beds."

Jerry Rhyne, another member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, reminds us that in the hot summer months "when a cold front comes through, it starts to work in reverse and activates the fish. If you've had a two-week or month period of super hot weather and all at once a cold front passes through, and it drops to 80 degrees and you've got cloud cover, it activates the fish."

ASK OCHSNER

Q. It seems that my son is constantly getting athlete's foot. I know he bathes daily but that doesn't seem to help. Is there anything you can do to get rid of athlete's foot and prevent it from coming back? E.M., Sulphur, La.

A. Athlete's foot is a fungal infection, usually appearing between the web spaces of the toes and bottom of the feet. People who have moist, sweaty feet are generally more susceptible to developing this infection, says Dr. William Perret, chairman of the dermatology department at Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans.

No one knows why, but some people seem predisposed to athlete's foot. For them preventive measures are often less effective. Other people are immune to the problem. The key to preventing athlete's foot is to keep the feet dry, Dr. Perret says, but there are other things that can be done that may help prevent athlete's foot:

*Wear leather shoes instead of shoes made from synthetic materials, such as vinyl. Vinyl does not allow your feet to "breathe."

*Select shoes that are well-ventilated.

*Purchase cotton, not nylon or rayon socks, and change socks twice a day.

*Dry your toes carefully after bathing.

To treat athlete's foot, Dr. Perret suggests that you place absorbent material between your toes to encourage air circulation between your toes while absorbing moisture.

Talc, dusting powder or medication should be applied to the webs of your toes. Typical, over-the-counter antifungal medications are available as powders, sprays, creams, ointments and liquids and can help stop the infection.

WHEN YOU TALK, SHE LISTENS SALT DOMES NO PLACE FOR WASTE

Fight we have and fight we must. Two summers ago I stood along side the Governor and other state officials on the Salt Domes of Richton. I didn't need to be there. This was not my district. But I had a commitment to the people of Mississippi and myself. I was there at the Governor's request because he knew I could stand strong against Mississippi becoming a nuclear dumping ground for the rest of this nation.

Why should we be concerned about such a little thing as nuclear waste being stored or suspended within the salt cavities?

Think about this? Our livelihood and lifetime investments are here. Our heritage is here. Without ground water our roots would die.

We are not talking about just our own nuclear garbage, which is slight, but everyone's nuclear waste. Fear and unrest would make our area unattractive. Economic development would cease. (Our highways would be exposed a hundred fold, to the transportation of nuclear waste across our state.)

On March 4th, the Department of Justice, representing the Department of Energy, denied the consolidation of litigation action by the states, denied the motion for a Special Master, denied the motion for discovery and appointed a three-judge panel to consider the guidelines of environmental assessment cases.

Richton is still on the list and that list can be locked on any given day. We must not let down our guard. We must continue to monitor every move that is made. South Mississippi's future and destiny may depend on this decision.

As your senator, I pledge to continue my ongoing commitment to be a part of this monitoring system. The possibility of an accident is slight, but if one should occur the ramifications are forever. A two thousand year guarantee cannot be given.

TOOMEY GRADUATES

E. J. Toomey received a master of business administration degree from the University of Southern Mississippi at commencement exercises on May 9, 1987.

E. J. and his wife, Melinda, reside in Waveland. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Toomey, also of Waveland.

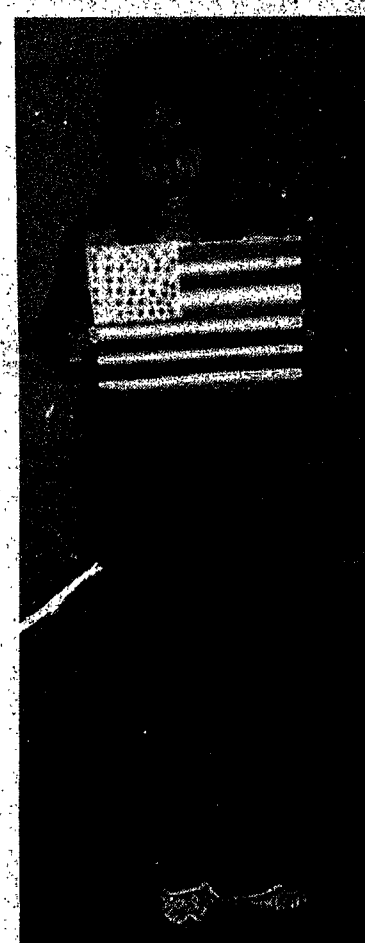

WHO'S WHO

Miss Kristin Ling of Waveland has been included in the 1987 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, a biographical compilation of 1987's most outstanding men and women in American universities and colleges.

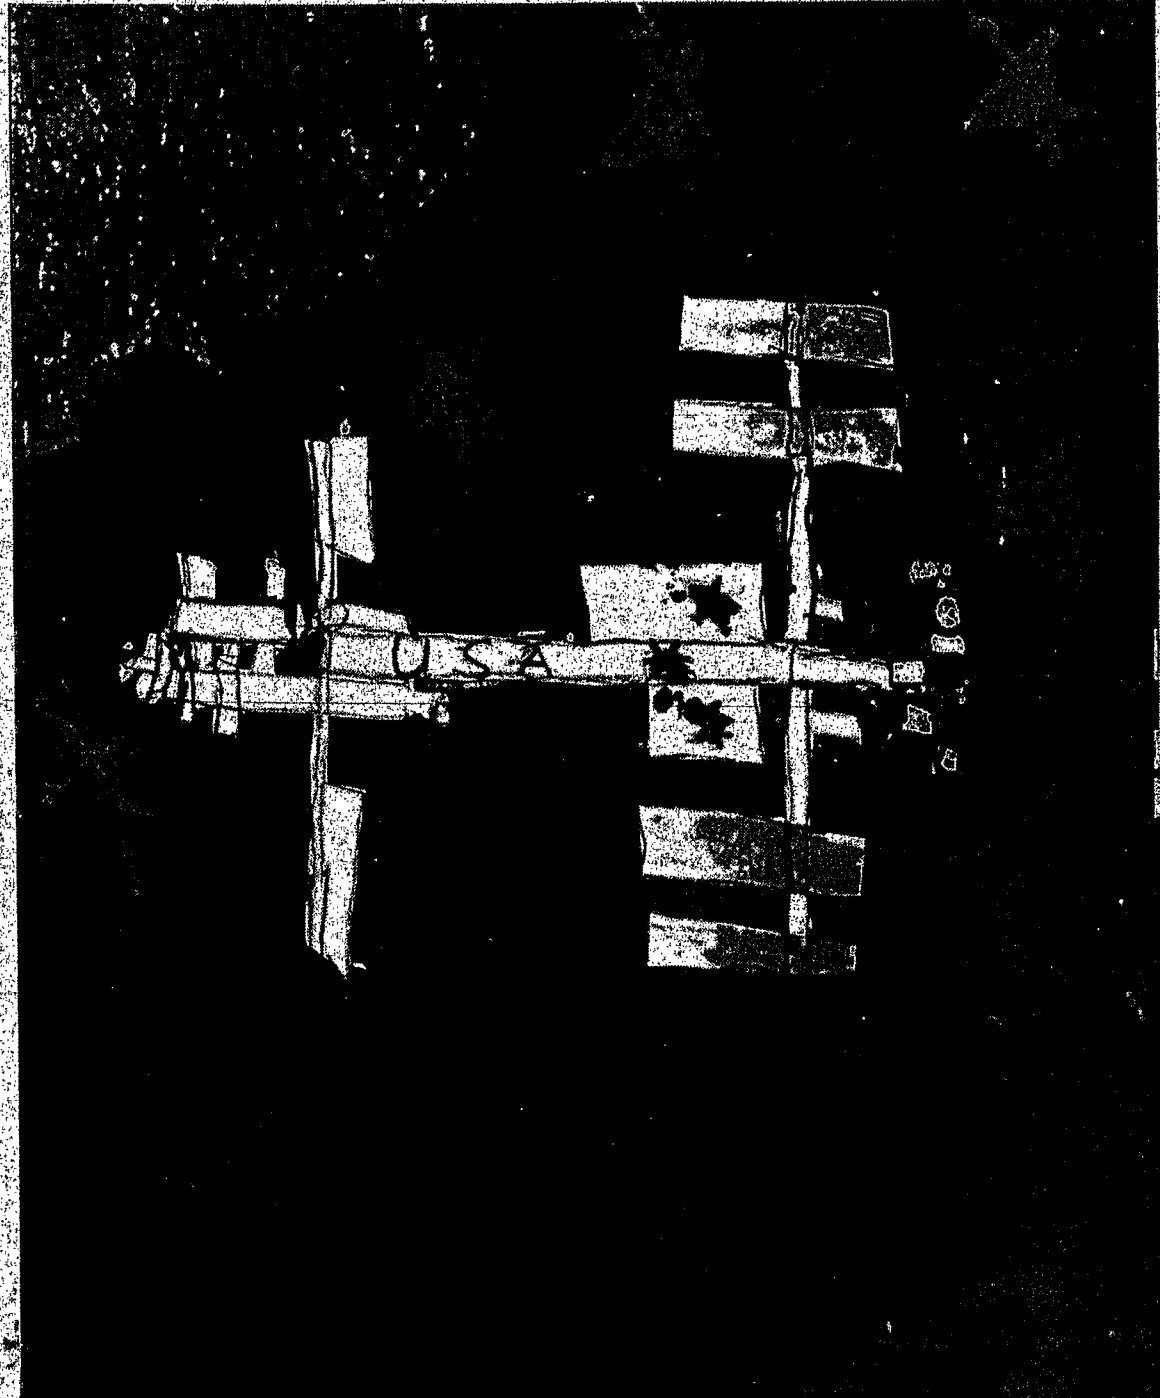

Students are selected for this honor on the basis of their commitment to character and scholarship. This is the 53rd year such a publication of this nation's outstanding students have been so honored.

Ms. Ling is a student at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, majoring in environmental studies, chemistry. She is a William E. Broch scholar there and will be a senior when she returns next month.

There were 484 Mississippians among the 32,857 young Americans honored by this publication, which is published by the Randall Publishing Co.

GRAND OL' FLAG—Page Harder, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Harder of Bay St. Louis, displays the American flag that she made during the "Paper Patriots" activity at the City-County Library during the Summer Reading Program on July 1. The activity was part of the Summer Reading Program theme "A Star Spangled Summer" in honor of the celebration of the Constitution's 200th anniversary.

SYMMETRICAL DRAWING OF SPACE STATION EXTERIOR won Scott Esher, 9, of Waveland a $100 U.S. Savings Bond and a framed Space Station artist's concept autographed by former astronauts Bob Overmyer and Charles Walker. Esher attends Waveland Elementary School, and his teacher is Theresa Browning. The Space Station art contest was sponsored by Martin Marietta and the Louisiana Nature and Science Center and was conducted in three age categories. Esher was named the winner of the Mississippi category for students ages 5 to 9.

Space Station Art Contest state winners announced

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Three Mississippi students were named winners of the Space Station art contest co-sponsored by Martin Marietta Corporation and the Louisiana Nature and Science Center.

The winners are Scott Esher, 9, of Waveland; Joseph Woullard, 10, of Hattiesburg, and Arthur Featherston, 16, of Webb.

The winners, chosen in three age categories, will receive a $100 U.S. Savings Bond and a framed Space Station artist's concept autographed by former astronauts Bob Overmyer and Charles Walker.

Scott Esher attends Waveland Elementary School in Waveland where he is a student of Theresa Browning. His colorful concept features a Space Station orbiting a distant earth, and depicts a blazing sun and several bright stars.

Joseph Woullard is a student of Cindy Gillian's at Woodley Elementary School in Hattiesburg. His piece demonstrates a lot of thought and planning in showing both an exterior and a cutaway view. It includes a garbage barge, water storage and an escape vehicle.

Arthur Featherston attends West

Tallahatchie High School in Webb where he is a student of Anne Preus. His configuration was original in its elliptical design and shows its size in proportion to nearby planets.

The winners' art will be displayed at the Louisiana Nature and Science Center along with all other contest entries.

Kids Say Know: facts about drug use

During the 1950's, 14 in 100,000 children were affected by the polio epidemic. Today, the AIDS epidemic affects approximately 17 in 100,000. About 10,000 in 100,000 adolescents are dependent upon drugs and alcohol.

The long-term physical and mental consequences of drug use are disastrous: nerve and liver damage, delusions, hallucinations, psychoses caused by drug toxicity, stroke, depression, convulsions, weight loss and addiction. Among children, the effects are swifter and often deadly.

Marijuana, once thought to be a harmless drug, is harmful to the lungs, the reproductive system and to the brain. It causes confusion, depression, irritability, paranoia and fear.

According to many experts, by the time parents discover their kids have a problem, kids have been using drugs for at least two years.

The American drug habit is enormous—about $110 billion a year—equivalent to more than one fifth of all merchandise sold through the nation's shopping centers.

Americans comprise five percent of the world's population, yet account for 60 percent of the world's illegal drug consumption.

Conservative government estimates show that 10-15 percent of the American workforce is dependent upon drugs or alcohol.

The cost to business is astonishing; drug and alcohol use costs business about $100 billion each year in decreased productivity, increased theft, and higher medical benefit payments due to addiction or industrial accidents.

America's first compulsory education law was passed in 1647 in Massachusetts.

ONE, TWO, THREE KICK!—Joe Calhoun of Gulfport Taekwondo demonstrates a side kick to Scott Esher, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Esher of Waveland during the martial arts demonstration on Thursday, July 2 at the Waveland Library. The demonstration was part of the Summer Reading Program which is presented at the City-County, Waveland and Kila Libraries each year for six weeks during the summer.

HAI KARATE—Joe Calhoun of Gulfport Taekwondo demonstrates the art of Marital Arts to participants in the Summer Reading Program at the Waveland Library. The martial arts demonstration was one of the many activities presented to children during the Hancock County Library System's 1987 Summer Reading Program that took place at the City-County, Waveland and Kila Libraries.

MSU slates annual music camp

Applications are still being taken for Mississippi State University's 26th annual Music Camp July 26-Aug. 1. The camp's format emphasizes instrumental and choral music with nationally known clinicians providing additional opportunities to enhance musical skills. Instrumental clinician is Dr. Bodie Hinton of Auburn, Ala., and choral clinician is Dr. Will May of North Texas State University. The seven-day camp includes classes in music theory, conducting, Broadway musicals, and improvisation. Participants can gain performing experience in small vocal ensembles, chorus, instrumental ensembles, and jazz and concert bands. There will also be special auxiliary unit drills to polish performances in baton, flag, twirling, rifle, dance, saber, strutting and drum major. The camp is designed for junior and senior high school students; band and choral directors; choral, instrumental and auxiliary sections and individual members; and students wishing to improve musical abilities. For more information, contact Jerry Williams, academic coordinator at 325-3490.

Hancock 4-H'ers participate in district 4-H horse show

Several Hancock County youths participated in the recent District 4-H Horse Show in Laurel.

The show started with the Junior 4-H horse judging contest. The Hancock judging team placed second in the 22-county district.

For the second year in a row, the individual high score honor was awarded to a member from Hancock County.

Ladell Ladner won this first place individual honor.

Judging team members are Ladell Ladner, Ginger Ladner and Toni Lynn Cuevas. The judging contest involves placing two classes of horses, one class at halter another class in performance, and giving oral reasons to a judge to justify their placings.

"Our team did an outstanding job and we are proud of them."

The two-day show then continued with the opening ceremonies. Each county was represented by a rider carrying the county name on a 4-H flag.

Hancock County was represented in nearly every class and brought home more than our share of awards.

4-H members who participated are Ginger Ladner with her ponies E.T., Suzie, Wildfire and Ben;

Heather Lott with her pony Apple; and a Quarter Horse Gelding Breezy; Kelly Ladner rode Reno's Peanut and Kinta Ladner rode Pep's Skip Star; and Jackie Odom with Lady's Slick Champ and Sonita.

Ginger Ladner, Heather Lott and Jackie Odom all advanced to the State 4-H Horse Show in Jackson and a chance to qualify for the Regional 4-H Horse Show to be held in Houston, Tex.

GINGER LADNER, front right, represented Hancock County in opening ceremonies in Laurel at the District 4-H Horse Show.

LADELL LADNER of Hancock County was the first place overall winner at the District 4-H Horse Show in Laurel.

Horse association convention to draw hundreds

Quarter Horse enthusiast Windy Kennedy will be competing at the 16th annual American Junior Quarter Horse Association World Championship Show and Convention in Tulsa, Okla. Aug. 2-8.

She will be among the 1,300 young people 18 and under from the United States, Canada and Australia, selected to participate in the show. She will compete with her registered American Quarter Horse Kiddy Flower, a 1973 sorrel gelding in the showmanship and halter classes.

Highlights of the AQHA World Show will be aired on The Nashville Network.

State delegates will meet in various committee sessions to conduct the business of the AQHA, the largest youth horse association in the world, during the AQHA Convention slated for Sunday. During the convention, six 1987-1988 AQHA national officers will be elected to represent the 10,000-plus AQHA members.

Approximately 40 teams are expected to participate in Friday's judging contest which is open to 4-H, FFA and AQHA judging teams. Additionally, a variety of social activities are scheduled for the eight days, including a clinic, barbecue and dance, and an evening at a water recreation park.

Other features of the show include the AQHA Exposition and Trade Show which will be open daily during the show and features nearly 30 booths. AQHA's booth will be a part of the Exposition where interested parties may request performance and race records on registered Quarter Horses. Numerous equine-related products and services will be on display.

Miss Kennedy is the 16-year-old granddaughter of Gerald S. Kennedy and Mrs. Doris Seuzeneau of Bay St. Louis. She is a junior at Abraham Lincoln High School in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q. I am represented by an attorney and I am not satisfied with the way I am being represented. Is there anything I can do?

A. The best thing to do is to contact your attorney and in a fact-to-face meeting tell the attorney you are not satisfied.

If you are still not satisfied, you may contact the "bar association" in your community.

If your local bar association is not helpful, you can contact the Mississippi State Bar Association at 1-800-682-6423.

Q. I am a hairdresser and as a condition of my employment, I signed a "non-competition" clause in an employment contract. I now wish to open up my own shop in competition with my former employer. Is the non-competition clause enforceable?

A. Non-competition clauses are not favored in the law but can be enforceable if properly worded in terms of time and distance.

Teacher Talk

Developing a positive self-concept

By Frances Cannon

What is a positive self-concept or good self-image?

A person's self-concept has been developing since very early childhood. It develops from experiences of daily life, from the child's successes and failures along with the reactions of other people to these successes and failures.

The self-concept is the way we see ourselves and it is our mental picture of the way we think others see us. A positive self-concept means a person perceives himself as a successful, happy individual able to do many things well and having the courage to tackle a new problem, provided it is within his capabilities, and believe he will eventually succeed.

How could parents help their child develop a positive self-concept?

Your child's self-concept reflects the attitudes demonstrated toward him by the family, relatives, his playmates as well as his teachers and neighbors. He sees himself as he thinks others see him. If he is praised for trying, for doing something well, for having the courage to try a difficult task, he will develop confidence in himself.

Concentrate on being positive in your daily activities with your child. As parents you have the unique opportunity of knowing and loving your child longer than he remembers himself. Let him know you love him and care about him. This caring and supportive atmosphere influences the way he thinks of himself.

The importance of successful experiences cannot be stressed enough. Successful early experiences are important in establishing a child's belief in himself and his belief in his own ability to learn. He gains self confidence and with this, he will have the initiative to improve, to go ahead to try new things or attempt difficult problems.

But how can you give positive praise when nothing seems to be right?

For every negative experience, help your child remember at least two positive or successful experiences to balance it. Certainly you can't praise failures but you can encourage him with positive statements and assurances that he is loved and liked in spite of his mistakes.

County Agent's Notes

By Lee Taylor

PREPARING DOVE FIELDS

Dove hunters who want to attract birds during this fall's hunting season should make plans to plant dove fields now.

Summer is the time to plant millet in the dove fields. The fields should be at least two acres and should be near water if possible.

Doves prefer to light in clean, bare areas to feed, so row or strip plantings are more likely to attract them than solid fields.

If you've broadcast planted millet or grain fields, you can make them more attractive to doves by disking strips at random after harvesting the crop.

Browntop and Proso millet are two crops that attract doves. Browntop millet should be seeded now at 15 pounds an acre in rows three feet apart or may be broadcast or drill planted at 20 pounds an acre.

Proso millet should be broadcast at 15 pounds an acre through mid-June. This is about 75 days before you want the mature seeds for doves.

For information on other crops that attract doves, contact the county Extension office.

The lowest point on land is the Dead Sea, 1,296 feet below sea level.

LEADERSHIP and EXPERIENCE you can count on!

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS is a trademark reg. in the U.S. Pat. and TM Office.

TRIPLE YOUR REFRIGERATOR'S LIFE SPAN

It used to be that a refrigerator could operate 30 years or longer without a bit of attention. Nowadays, though, most modern refrigerators will make it through the five-year warranty period and then conk out in the sixth or seventh year. Why? The condensers of most new refrigerators are no longer located on the top or in the back but underneath—a convenient but inefficient and problematic location. Not only does hot air tend to rise and flow around the refrigerator's cabinet—increasing the amount of energy consumed in cooling the contents—but the horizontal condenser is almost completely dependent on the fan for heat exchange and is quite likely to accumulate dust.

That's the bad news. The good news is that, with proper maintenance, you can extend the life of a modern refrigerator from barely longer than the 5-year warranty period to 15 or even 20 years. And all you have to do is perform a few fairly simple maintenance tasks.

The most expensive component of a refrigerator is the compressor, and the most common reason for premature compressor failure is overheating resulting from inadequate airflow around the condenser. By taking a few minutes once a year to clean the accumulated dust off the coil, you can prevent compression failure and greatly extend the life of your appliance.

The best tool for coil cleaning is a refrigerator brush specially designed for the task and available from most hardware stores for less than $5.00. Lacking this, you can use a broom or a vacuum cleaner in which the airflow has been reversed to "blow."

To clean the condenser coil, simply unplug the appliance, remove the protective grille if there is one, and gently blow or brush the dirt off the coil. Take the time to wipe any dirt off the fan blades, too—dust can accumulate on each blade's leading edge, causing the fan to slow down and turn out of balance. This can place a strain on the fan motor. Replace the grille, plug the refrigerator back in, and you'll have an appliance that releases heat more efficiently, operates with less strain on the mechanical parts, and draws less current. It'll do a better job for less money.

Replacement of the gasket—the strip of rubber around the door that makes the refrigerator airtight—is a job that may, depending on the model of the appliance, call for professional help. But checking the effectiveness of the seal on an old refrigerator is easy. Take a dollar bill and try to move it around the gasket with the door shut. If it slides freely, the gasket probably needs to be replaced.

Our last maintenance tip concerns something you should not do. On older, "non-frostfree" models, never use an ice pick, knife, or other sharp object to chip frost from the interior coil. Doing so risks puncturing the coil, and that can release the freon charge and introduce water into the freon—a problem which will require expensive professional attention.

NEXT WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY SALOME

Weekly Tip: Your ambitions are attainable.

Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) You're really thinking on your toes now, so get cracking on that new project. Be sure you set aside time for your mate.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20) Any changes you want to make now should work out nicely. You're feeling awfully proud of yourself now, and rightly so. Why not celebrate?

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Your family is being quite demanding now, but your efforts are noticed. Maintain a low profile at the office.

Cancer (June 21-July 20) Your friends are the ones to ask if perplexing matters have you worried. Rest up after your heavy traveling.

Leo (Jul. 21-Aug. 22) Any discussions you have with your superiors are likely to swing in your favor, but choose your words carefully.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your most trusted adviser is a bit under the weather, so cheer this one up. The work you do should be kept a secret.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your amiable ways are pleasing to friends and family, so ask for the favors you need. That Libra charm is working!

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Romance is in the stars for you, so set out on an adventure with your loved one. Puzzling information may come your way.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A good friend can give you fine ideas for your projects. Any plans you have for traveling should be well-scrutinized.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can make great progress in your career goals now. You've been in a rut for a long time, so do something spontaneously and live it up.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) New faces are coming your way; it would be wise to greet each one pleasantly. Be clever in business dealings.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20) Devotion can bring excellent results. The more you meet the expectations of others, the more they'll meet yours.

If you were born this week, you are certainly up on modern trends and happenings. You without artifice, are sure to bring you many rewards. You have, however, a tendency to act too quickly when your back is up against the wall. You'd do well to study into any new ventures before getting involved.

EAST FORK BRACES FOR JERRY

The east fork of the Amite River which arises in the southwest Mississippi hills to flow into Louisiana where Cajuns pronounce it the "Amiet" to empty ultimately into Lake Ponchartrain near New Orleans, has been somewhat of a tuning fork for popular U.S. country comedian Jerry Clower.

It was along the banks of this clear flowing little stream that bends bullrushes in the direction of its flow that Clower had the direction of his life set as well. And today, at the zenith of his success, Jerry and his wife are clearing out a little place in the woods right smack in the middle of East Fork Community to make his home when he is not gallivanting around sharing his rural, robust, folksy humor with the world.

Last week this writer visited East Fork and mixed and mingled for a spell with the neighbors and family of Jerry to see how this little rural hamlet made famous by the celebrity's tales of coon hunting and rat killings and various and sundry other rural things was bracing itself for the residential return of its most famous local boy made good.

Made "good" may be an exaggeration. Made "famous" might be more like it. Jerry's mother, Mrs. Mabel Moore, is justly proud of her sons—Jerry, who had a lot of mischief in him when he was growing up but was never mean, and Sonny who was a year and a half older than Jerry and who has retired as a lieutenant commander in the U.S. Navy and also has returned to East Fork to live.

As we sat in the Moore home alongside Highway 24 which runs between McComb and Liberty, Jerry's mother pointed southwestward toward the house where they lived when Jerry got a taste of coon hunting that today remains one of his most popular comical stories.

I asked Mrs. Moore how Jerry's success in the entertainment world had affected her at East Fork.

"It makes me humble," she answered quietly and quickly, "that God gave him his talent." She had just returned home and slipped out of her volunteer worker's uniform of the local hospital in Liberty.

She went on to point out that Jerry as a boy had been "long-headed and determined." He had been at the receiving end of a lot of spankings because he had a lot of fun and devilment in him, but he loved everybody, she said.

I had a tough time running down those Ledbetter boys. They tried to stay in the shadows. But another neighbor recalled with a chuckle some of Jerry's mischief there on the banks of the East Fork. Jerry rode the school bus home daily from East Fork high school, according to an anonymous source, and he and another lad tossed a piece of paper out on the roadside as they rode homeward. When word reached the principal's office about the misdeed, Jerry was made to return and pick it up.

The incident didn't set too well with Jerry who then devised a plan to set in motion on the last day of school. That day, Jerry dribbled paper out of the window of the bus all the way home, to his ultimate sorrow. The principal trailed the bus in his car and saw what was happening, and Jerry paid for it through a pretty good whipping.

A. B. Williams took me to the banks of the East Fork of the Amite River where neighborhood folks go swimming and the East Fork Baptist Church has held many baptisms. It was here that Jerry at age 14 had prior misdeeds cleansed from his life as he was emersed in the cold, clear waters of the stream by his pastor.

Edwin Wilkinson went to school with Jerry and even used to double date with him, and was quick to praise the good moral character that helped him win the hand of the pretty girl that lived in the house where the road to the school and Baptist Church leaves Highway 24—Miss Homerline Wells.

In fact it is on land that belonged to the Wells at that time that Jerry and Homerline will pour the foundation for their home later this summer in a wooded clearing that will bring nature close to them from an upstairs bay window, according to Mrs. Moore.

Wilkinson, like Jerry's other neighbors, is excited and happy that Jerry's roots will soon be transplanted back home. "He is like that, though," Wilkinson commented. "He is the kind that would only put out a tape that the whole family can listen to and enjoy. I understand he absolutely refused to let some promoters add a little off-color material to his routine. Jerry wouldn't stand for it!"

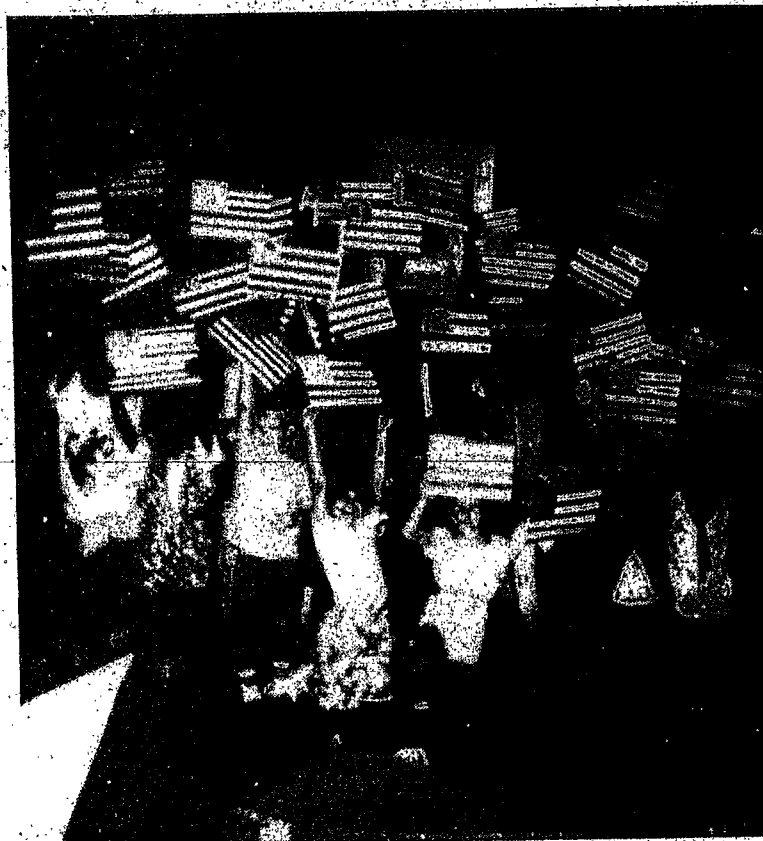

His mother goes farther as she added, "I think the reason he has been successful is because he is a Christian that never puts on a show or makes a talk without including a Christian testimony."

Even after I pulled out of East Fork on Highway 24 headed toward McComb, the local praise of the home community star continued. I stopped to photograph a beautiful old barn alongside the highway on the high ground between the Amite and Tangipahoa river bridges.

The builder and owner of the barn is 80-year-old A. L. McElveen who in his prime developed a thriving sawmilling and agricultural community there on the highway that bustled so that it once was known as "Little Chicago."

An accident has cost Mr. McElveen a part of a leg and Parkinson's disease today tries to cut him down even more, and a fire destroyed his marvelous showplace home and bad times are slowly depreciating the magnificent old barn, but the old gentleman sat in a wheel chair in his trailer home on the property and with a smile recalled some of the glorious past in the community.

He remembers Jerry's grandfather, Wesley Burns, who had handed edging operations for him and he described him "as good a man as ever there was." His countenance smiled as he reflected on his good old days. He too was baptized as a young lad in the East Fork, as was Wilkinson and others referred to in this article, and pronounced blessings on this writer as I

Donald Butler
Director
Bureau of Narcotics

Q: I have some friends that smoke marijuana every now and then. Does that necessarily make them a drug user? (M.K. Florence, MS)

A: Whether a person smokes marijuana daily or occasionally, is not the deciding factor of being a drug user. It is the fact of putting chemically harmful substances into your body repeatedly that makes one a drug user.

However, drug users can be divided into three types due to the intake and frequency of drugs taken. There is the experimental user who tries drugs once or twice because of curiosity or from peer pressure. There is the occasional user who uses drugs for their enjoyment, but not on a regular basis. And there is the daily user who continues drug use on a regular basis.

If you would like to ask a question, address it to Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, P.O. Box 6462, Jackson, Ms 39212.

Meet Patsy Dubuisson...
...your Real Estate "Specialist"

Selling your property, or finding the perfect home, is not a part-time thing for Patsy. She's dedicated to doing just that in a professional way with a personal touch.

The Bay-Waveland area is Patsy's home. She knows this county and its people. She knows the school districts, the tax structure, the elevations, and where to buy some good boiled crayfish.

But most of all, Patsy knows real estate, and her peers continue to recognize her achievements. The Gulf Coast Board of Realtors honored her with the prestigious Ruby Award for handling more residential transactions in 1986 than any other realtor on the coast.

Patsy's wealth of experience and ERA's innovative Buyer's Protection and Seller's Security Plans make a winning combination. See Patsy for the best in real estate!

Payment of $39 membership fee entitles a member to local ground ambulance transportation at no direct cost. Ambulance service must be medically necessary, as determined by the provider, and shall include patients who are nonambulatory or have a medical condition which requires transport by ambulance. Ground transportation outside of the provider's local service area will be provided at a discounted rate. This membership permits the ambulance company to collect payment for services rendered directly from any insurer or other third party medical benefit provider at no charge to the member. The ambulance company will bill the third party directly, and all non-member rates if a member has no medical benefit coverage for the services rendered. The fee is still entitled to the free ambulance service outlined in our brochure. Membership is non-transferable and non-refundable.
